An Experiment In Boarding Elderly Draws Fire

By FRANK LaPIERRE

There is an experiment of sorts under way in the state centering around the boarding of senior citizens, but stiff opposition from homeowners' groups is hampering its progress in some areas.

The "experiment" is turning private homes into boarding houses for ambulatory senior citizens where from three to nine such persons can live in a homelike atmosphere.

In those areas where the program has been under way long enough for state and local officials to witness its benefits, the residential homes for the aged have been hailed as successes.

Opposition has come from local homeowners who insist that if senior citizens must live away from their relatives they should be put into "regular" old age homes or convalescent hospitals.

Talks with senior citizens in parts of the North County revealed some interesting arguments in behalf of the new concept.

Most elderly who are in the ambulatory category (able to get around unaided) feel that once they are admitted to an "old folks" home they are merely waiting to die.

Neither they nor their kin, for the most part, can afford the expense of placing them in a "good" establishment designed to care for the aged. Some charge as high as $750 monthly.

They would like to spend their declining years in a homelike atmosphere.

Recently, in Daly City, Mrs. Perla F. Canaya applied for a license to operate a four bed home for the aged in the Southern Hills section of the city. After much opposition from the Southern Hills Homeowners Association, it was turned down by the Planning Commission.

The rejection was upheld in a split four-to-one vote of the city council.

The incident was considered a typical situation where such homes are concerned.

City Planner John Walker favored the idea and said the home would be established in a two-story structure located in an R-2 zone. This would not conflict with the neighborhood or land use, he said.

Robert Kencaley, a resident of Bellevue Avenue and a San Francisco attorney, argued the home would constitute a change in use — would be a commercial venture and would "open the door" for all sorts of home occupations in the area.

In short, it would set a precedent.

The fire department, police and county health department okayed the home.

Miss Kay Knauf and Mrs. Esther Quist of the County Social Services Division, Licensing Bureau, presented arguments on behalf of the home and explained the drastic shortage of such shelters for the county's aged.

They informed the council and Planning Commission Mrs. Canaya was capable and well trained; that the structure met all existing safety regulations, and "the elderly living there would be ambulatory."

It was pointed out by the two experts the applicant could board two elderly persons without even asking the city for permission.

Councilman Frank Pacelli throughout the series of meetings on the matter maintained "Something" had to be done in the way of providing housing for these senior citizens who wanted to continue a normal family life and not be "tucked away in a convalescent home."

He suggested a master plan be developed to insure an equal number of such establishments would be spread throughout Daly City and not congregated in any one area, as has happened in such communities as East Palo Alto.

Pacelli recommended sitting down and discussingt he matter and, hopefully, the development of a master plan for residential homes for the aged with the city's homeowners' groups.

His suggestions and recommendations were met with less than a warm reception. He voted to grant the permit while his fellow councilmen voted it down.

Karczewsky Completes Different Auto Detail

By WILL E. THOMAS

Sgt. Ray Karczewski, a veteran Pacifica policeman, was on a different kind of "auto detail" just before he took a disability retirement last Friday.

Since late August he had been going from door to door as part of a Community Development Program to clean up the municipality of some distracting eyesores — primarily old automobiles and parts.

He completed the task — covering the entire coastal community from Linda Mar to Pacific Manor — last Friday, the day his awaited retirement became effective.

With the police department since 1962 — he made sergeant in January, 1966 — Karczewski had injured his back on duty in January of 1967, when hit by a board. He'd been troubled ever since.

Karczewski had applied for disability retirement 13 months ago, according to Pacifica officials.

He was detached from the police department to community development partially because of the injury, ponited out that department's chief, Lester Clark, who called the cleanup phase of his program a "full-time job."

Just previously assigned to the detective division, Karczewski had the job of issuing warning tags where municipal ordinance violations are detected.

He was on lookout for the abandoned vehicle specifically, but Karczewski also was looking at fire, safety and aesthetic violations as well. A pile of debris, an unkempt fence might be looked at.

The aim is an over-all push on the city's part to make the "scenic" that chamber of commerce folks tack onto Pacifica meaningful, indicates Lester H. Clark, the 36-year old director of Community Development.

It is a follow up, in a way, Clark pointed out, to some suggestions coming from the Congress of Community Progress early in the year.

The recommendations evolved around the community's general appearance, and old automobiles have irritated the municipal leaders for years.

"What we were doing with Ray," Clark said, "in a very low key way, when we find these things, is to go up to the door and say, 'Okeh, look, this is in violation of the City Ordinance' . . ."

The owners of the property in question are asked to clean up, and a notice of violation, granting 10 days in which to abate the violation, is left also.

"If you went through before and after," Clark declared, "you would see some compliance already with some of these things."

The reaction "generally had been good," he added, though from house to house the immediate reactions vary.

"Some persons have said, 'Know why you're here, and I know you're right'," Clark said. Others are "not too happy," he admitted.

Clark said there remains follow-up work relative to abatement notices handed out by Karczewski.

Also, he added, there are "problems coming up" in the areas the now-retired sergeant covered early in his rounds.

Couple Is Discovered Slain In A Bedroom At Pacifica

Woman Shot Four Times, Man Once

The strange circumstances surrounding the bedroom slaying of a young Pacifica divorcee and the married father of three children remained a mystery this morning.

The dead were identified by Pacifica police as 41-year-old William Goggins, 1183 Cervantes Street, a National Guard master sergeant, and Joyce Strach, 32, who resided at the scene of the shootings.

Police found the couple lying in a pool of blood in the master bedroom of the woman's home at 1159 Cervantes Street in the north Coastside community about 7:42 Monday.

Five shots from a 38 caliber revolver found at the scene had been fired at Mrs. Strach as she apparently reclined on the bed clad only in her underwear. Four of the bullets struck her.

Goggins lay dead atop Mrs. Strach's body, a single shot in the back of his head.

The gun was identified by police as belonging to Goggins.

Officer Dennis Raymond said a neighbor, Clarence Wilson, 1135 Cervantes, discovered the deaths after being summoned to the scene by 11-year-old Stephen Strach, who became alarmed when he heard what he described as "banging noises" and his mother's screams from inside the house.

Stephen told police the noise sounded like someone was pounding on a wall.

The Strach youth was playing outside, as was a younger sister, Debbie, 6. Stephen was in the backyard, Debbie playing in the street out in front of the Linda Mar region residence.

Officer Raymond, noting the case still to be "up in the air," said investigation has not yet determined how long the couple were in the home together before the first shots rang out.

Although the authorities still continued to piece shreds of evidence together, Raymond indicated neighbors apparently had

Drive To Unseat 3 S. Bruno Councilmen; Leaders Told

Members who have volunteered to serve on the organizing committee of the San Bruno recall campaign, and the committee's recall policy, were made public at Monday night's council meeting.

Orville Wycoff, identifying himself as chairman of the organizing committee, submitted a letter (after reading it aloud) to the councilmen.

Another resident, Henry Crosby, from the audience, questioned whether this was a proper move, referring to it as official notification to the councilmen, which he said he understood was not to be done until after a six month in-office deadline.

Mayor Neil Christal allowed the letter to be read and reminded Wycoff of the fact he (Christal) was bending over backwards to let Wycoff say his piece.

Wycoff said a group of resident and business leaders met September 26 for the purpose of setting up an organizing committee to survey and solicit community support for the recall of Councilmen Ted Long and Richard Griffith and Mayor Christal.

In addition to Wycoff being selected chairman of the group, Mrs. Wilma Ford was appointed committee coordinator. Financial responsibilities were delegated to Lance Miller, who, Wycoff said, had opened a banking account to deposit funds to support the recall movement. Miller also was involved in a recent effort to obtain a post office box for the committee.

Selected to head up a citizen participation sub-committee were co-chairmen Margaret Kozkowski and Michael Mace. Publicity duties are to be handled by Larry Mobley, and recall legal advise will be the duty of Robert Dobbins.

Wycoff said he will issue an appeal to residents to either write or call committee representatives to indicate their support of the recall action and offer their "indignation over the action in railroading the appointment of Christopher (Kit) Menkin as city manager."

He said it is the opinion of the organizing committee that "we

Corey Snubs TV Report

Urges Shift Responsibility To Engineer

A report on San Bruno's cable television system submitted by City Manager Christopher (Kit) Menkin was snubbed by Councilman George Corey Monday night.

Corey further suggested that the responsibility of the city-owned cable system be taken from Menkin and placed in the hands of City Engineer Leo Van Dusen.

This desire was made into a motion, and seconded by Councilman Maurice Hamilton. It lost, however, on a 3-2 vote.

Instead, on a motion by Councilman Ted Long, and a resultant 4-1 vote, councilmen set 7:30 p.m., October 8, as a time and date for a meeting with all persons connected with the system.

On the second vote, Councilman Hamilton joined the majority of Mayor Neil Christal and Councilmen Long and Dick Griffith because he said he thought the report by Menkin should get wide distribution.

The cable television report by Menkin was the only item councilmen idscussed at the 7 p.m. pre-council caucus session.

Menkin said the 38-page report in essence "asks for an engineering and marketing study, and a scientific and business-like approach to the city-operated system."

He said rumors that the system would be sold to private enterprise "are foolish and rediculous." Menkin said he didn't think the system could be sold, and pointed out that the city has some $100,000 invested it it.

At this point Corey began a sustained picking away at Menkin and the report. "What if someone offered you $500,000?" asked Corey.

The councilman then wanted to know why an engineering study was necessary. He noted that one already has been completed, and the contract was let on the basis of that study.

Menkin said he didn't want to be held responsible "a year form now." Councilman Hamilton interjected, "You won't."

According to Menkin, San Bruno's cable television is in trouble and "if we don't straighten it out, we'll be in a bind." He didn't elaborate other than to say the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has set up specific regulations which apply to cable television. This includes a requirement of program origination.

"What bothers me," siad Corey, "is that Menkin says he has no confidence in this system or in municipal cable television. We should turn this matter over to Leo Van Dusen, then we know it will be done as best it can be done. Menkin lacks any desire to proceed with the system as it is contemplated."

Corey pointed out that Menkin is suggesting the use of 16 people to operate the system. "This, and I'm trying to use mild words, is too much," said Corey. "Our philosophy is not to set up a private studio, merely

WRIT OF MANDATE DENIED

The writ of mandate filed by San Bruno Planning Commissioner Victor Ogrey to oust City Manager Chrsitopher (Kit) Menkin has been denied without a hearing by Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn.

Although obviously not happy with the decision, Ogrey's attorney Herman Fitzgerald said his client was "heartened" by the last paragraph of the court's decision.

Judge Cohn stated in this paragraph that "the political differences," as set forth in the petitions he reviewed, "are clearly matters for the voters and not the courts."

Fitzgerald said the response "might give the recall the shot in the arm that will benefit it."

The denial also noted that the hiring of Menkin was a discretionary act and not a ministerial act for which a writ of mandate would apply.

San Bruno Will Share Its Manager List With Searching SSF Council

By BOB PETERSON

Considering the city manager situations in the cities of South San Francisco and San Bruno, what seems an appropriate gesture was agreed to Monday night.

Upon the request of South San Francisco, San Bruno councilmen said they would send a list of names of city manager applicants they received, but never used, to South San Francisco.

South San Francisco last week began the task of seeking a new city managerto replace a council-majority - fired Tom McKenzie.

San Bruno, of course, was left holding a list of at least 90 names when a council-majority hired Christopher (Kit) Menkin in a controversial move that has resulted in the assurance of an attempt at recalling that majority.

Menkin Monday night also supplied San Bruno councilmen with information from the League of California Cities on city manager and city attorney selection procedures.

He said the league stated there is no one way to appoint a city manager, or a city attorney. The league provided a magazine article on city manager appointment procedures. The organization said consultants are sometimes contacted regarding city attorney hiring procedures.

San Bruno Councilman George Corey said his request for this information "was done to prepare a procedure for the future." He also requested a copy of a booklet, "The selection of a City Manager," and asked that they all be kept on file in the city clerk's office for future reference.

Corey also requested, and received unanimous approval, to send letters from the city clerk's office to all persons applying for the city manager post, advising them a city manager has been appointed and thanking them for their applications.

Meanwhile in South San Francisco, Acting City Manager Larry Ross was instructed to begin advertising for a new city manager, but to restrict the advertising to the state of California.

Ross, said he would be contacting the League of California Cities, which generally keeps a file of qualified job applicants. He said he also would send a letter to all cities in the state.

The qualifications councilmen want in the new city manager are a degree in Public Administration or equivalent, and five years of experience at a city of comparable size. The salary was left open.

A closing date for applications

Coast Couple Terrorized By Robbers

A masked gunman terrorized a couple in the Fairmont section of Pacifica Sept. 23, smashing through a hallway door — after knocking first. Help came only after three neighbors had refused assistance.

The man eluded police, but an apparent accomplice — helping him carry a television set on the run across several lawns — was apprehended.

He was identified by Pacifica police as Jerry Bryant, 24, of 38 Frankfort Street, Daly City.

Police said the horror for David Vincent and his wife, Diane, began at about 11:50, after the couple had returned from a movie at 11 and went to bed.

can no longer trust the judgment or honesty of these three councilmen who have repeatedly refused to reconsider their appointment of Menkin.

"Our only course of action is to show them the extent of community indignation over this issue (by recalling them)."

It was pointed out that committee members Ford and Miller are offering their telephones for purpose of receiving calls, and that written communications of support can be sent to Miller's business address.

"The organizing committee plans to have a sufficient show of community support by October 7, at which time the recall campaign will be set up for the specific purpose of circulating a recall petition throughout the community," said Wycoff.

Other names mentioned as being volunteers in the recall effort are the Rev. Norman Nelson, Richard Stagg, Nicholas Barbarotto, Paul Vogel, William J. Schneider, Mrs. Hap Beckner and Vernon (Tex) Guess.

As the committee's policy, Wycoff read a six-point statement. It points out first the committee will seek to recall the three councilmen.

Secondly the committee shall in no way involve itself in personality conflicts, nor personality attacks. It will be a campaign on the issue of the procedure used to select the city manager.

Wycoff said the committee shall not criticize anyone as an individual, but direct its attention to the impropriety of the selection.

Also that the committee shall support no candidate to fill seats vacated by the recall, but shall encourage candidates to run on a platform of honesty and integrity in city government.

He said no public statement shall come from the committee without prior approval of the steering committee, and that the committee will accept no financial contribution except from San Bruno residents or bona fide San Bruno businessmen.

Later Wycoff assured "those nervous about the recall action" that the members of the committee were reluctant to bring it about. "We made every effort to avoid it," he said, then referred to the appointment of Menkin as poor ethics, acting improperly and not in the best interest of San Bruno.

In response to a woman who went into a long dissertation against Councilman Maurice Hamilton, and at the same time praise Menkin for his performance, "regarding the things he had to tolerate," Wycoff said he never heard Menkin "give one concise answer all night. This you expect from a city manager."

Wycoff also got into a brief verbal exchange with Mayor Christal when Christal challenged Wycoff's statement that the appointment of Menkin was not democratic.

Christal said it was done in a democratic manner, and that was that. Wycoff felt otherwise, and said he was going to have his say or Christal would have to have him thrown out. He then told his interpretation of democratic procedure whereby a majority rules after every other avenue has been exploited.

Several others spoke. One lady presented a check to Wycoff and said she would "walk the hills with a petition to take care of this little deal," a reference to the Menkin appointment.

Search Started For New Manager

was set for the end of October, or sooner, according to Ross, if sufficient acceptable applicants are found before that time. Ross said the city could have a replacement for fired Tom McKenzie by December.

As to Ross's extra compensation for filling in as city manager, Mayor Patrick Ahern requested the matter be put aside until a full council convened.

Absent from the special Tuesday session were Councilmen Fran Bertucelli, who suggested the temporary increase in salary, and William Borba, who along with Bertucelli and Ahern controlled the majority vote that ousted McKenzie.

Ross Wednesday morning met with the majority of the department heads and officially advised them of McKenzie's termination.

He said McKenzie was still at home, and had no immediate plans.

Ross, who worked closely with McKenzie, said, "As for myself, he (McKenzie) was a pretty fine fellow. We all knew where we stood with him." It was mentioned by some that there was bitterness about the firing.

The acting city manager then asked for the patience and cooperation of the department heads.

"I may have to farm some materials back to you which ordinarily would be accomplished through the city manager's office," said Ross. "The reason for this is that it's only me in the office. I can't do it all myself."

Ross explained that since he and McKenzie each had their own separate projects, the department heads shouldn't assume Ross knows everything that is scheduled to happen.

"Don't leave me in an embarrassing position," said Ross. "I want to know about all the major things that are happening so that I can answer the council."

Ross also mentioned that some people have been questioning the security of their positions in the wake of the firing.

"I don't think there is any reason to become alarmed about your security," said Ross, and he suggested that maybe an executive session can be arranged with the council "so they can put your mind at ease."

not heard any disturbances from the Strach home.

Raymond said Goggins was married and the father of three children.

His wife, Mary, was at work at the time of the killings.

The Coroner's office said both were shot at close range.

Mrs. Strach apparently was hit four times. One shot that struck her left elbow, but left no powder marks, indicating it might have been fired from a distance. However, there were powder marks on the outside of the elbow, where one shot entered. The bullet traveled through the elbow and the left breast, into the shoulder, the coroner's spokesman explained.

Mrs. Strach also suffered a wound of the right breast. Spokesman said there were heavy powder marks on the right side of her bra.

Goggins died of a bullet wound that entered through the right side of his neck and exited through the nose.

master bedroom heard noises downstairs, much like the garage door opening, the authorities said.

He put on his trousers and had started for the kitchen when he heard footsteps on the basement stairs that led to the second level of the home at 23 Eastridge.

Then, there was a knock on the door.

Vincent asked who was there, twice, but received mere "mumbles" each time.

The suspect then broke through the door and Vincent ran towards the front door, hoping to get outside. However, he turned and saw a man, his face masked by a stocking, pointing a gun at him.

"Stop or I'll kill you," the suspect reportedly shouted at Vincent, at the same time lunging at Vincent — or slipping on the hallway tile, police said.

The suspect regained his footing, grabbed hold of Vincent's hair and shoved the barrel of his gun against Vincent's head.

In the meantime, Mrs. Vincent had locked herself in the bathroom of the master bedroom.

Her purse was on the hallway floor. The suspect picked it up and removed three or four $1 bills, then forced Vincent, then facedown on the floor, to get up, yanking him by his hair.

He forced Vincent into another bedroom, where he asked for more money. The man's hand still held Vincent's hair; the gun remained at his head, as they moved into the master bedroom.

"I'm going to kill you for what you did to my brother or son," police said the suspect declared, before forcing both Mr. and Mrs. Vincent to the floor of the master bedroom bathroom. The comment was not explained.

The suspect held the gun at Mrs. Vincent's head for a time, then locked the pair in the bathroom and left.

Vincent found his bathroom window to be unlocked, and escaped the house that way.

He ran to seek help. Police said the first three neighbors refused to assist. The fourth allowed Vincent to call police.

Meanwhile, both suspects apparently had returned to the Vincent home, believing both Vincents to be locked up.

He kicked in the bathroom door, discovered Vincent had fled, and told Mrs. Vincent he was going to go find her husband and kill him, police reported.

Vincent was standing on the neighbor's front porch when he heard running footsteps on lawns. He flattened out on the porch and saw the masked suspect and his companion carrying his portable television set.

Police began responding and they nabbed Bryant at Edgewood and Gateway. The Tv was recovered in front of 105 Sunshine, around the corner from the street the Vincents live on.

Bryant was charged by police with armed robbery and burglary.

Eliminate Coast Road Project

Development of Vespero Avenue was eliminated last night from the Sharp Park Improvement District by City Council in Pacifica.

The action came on a 3-2 vote . . . Councilmen Daniel Modena and Harland Minshew voted "no" — after a number of citizens spoke out against inclusion.

Hillside instability, ecology and aesthetics of development were cited by opponents to the move.

Although at least 60 per cent of the residents on all of the streets involved in the district favored improvement, City Attorney John Sherman explained that the city was not mandated to include them.

In other action, the council:

Moved to amend its master undergrounding plan to include three additional areas, Fassler Avenue, from State Route 1 to Terra Nova Boulevard, Sharp Park Road, from State Route 1 to the easterly city limits and Terra Nova Boulevard from Oddstad Boulevard to Fassler Avenue.

—Adopted new Capital Improvement Fee structure as part of the municipal code.

—Adopted by reference the "Electrical Code of the County of San Mateo and by reference the "National Electrical Code 1968 Edition," as amended, as the Electrical Code of the City of Pacifica.

Speed Record Pilot Talks At Bruno Fete

Guest speaker at the San Bruno Aviation Appreciation Week banquet October 9 will be Colonel Robert L. Stephens, USAF, who currently holds the official world absolute speed record, as well as the sustained altitude record for aircraft. He was the first military pilot to test fly two of the Air Force's secret, most advanced aircraft, the YF-12A interceptor and the SR-71 advanced reconnaissance aircraft.

Colonel Stephens has twice been awarded the nation's second highest peace time award, the Legion of Merit. In 1968 he received his second Distinguished Flying Cross for outstanding achievement as pilot of the longest aircraft flight in history at speeds greater than 2,000 miles an hour. A native of Gilmer, Texas, Colonel Stephens has been a test pilot since 1947.

He received a Bachelor of Science Degree from Texas A&M in 1943, and a Master of Science Degree from Princeton University in 1949, both in Aeronautical Engineering.

During 1968 he served as the first active duty military president of the Society of Experimental Test Pilots, an international organization with test pilot members all over the free world. Since 1968 he has been assigned to the Office of Supersonic Transport Development, Department of Transportation, as Technical Advisor for SST Development, stationed at the Boeing Company, Seattle, Washington.

Veteran Millbrae City Clerk Isobel Smart is reported recently wed to Walter Muenter, 460 Mastick Avenue, San Bruno, a long-time friend.

Friends, in Millbrae, say the two were wed, in Carson City, on that date.

application based their arguments on zoning, others on the possibility it might be a commercial venture that would open the door for many others.

One resident opposed it on the grounds that some of the old people might be sunning themselves outside and the sight "would be quite depressing."

The Planning Commissioners stated they believed the well-being of the residents of the home might be in jeopardy.

Southern Hills Association president Frank Harrison pointed out during discussions on the matter that the area is far too hilly for the elderly inhabitans to walk around and some homeowners feared the influx of cars generated by the home would block their parking spaces.

Many of the arguments against the Canaya application were valid. Others were not.

An underlying current of embarrassment as to exactly what to do about these "old folks" was felt, Pacelli later noted.

"But the fact is we, here and now, must start to do something. Or else the state Legislature or federal government will step in and pre-empt our authority in this matter," Pacelli explained.

There is currently a proposal before the Legislature that will dictate who and where such homes will go. Applications will go directly to the county or state authorities and will not be processed by local planning groups.

"Perhaps if we started to work out this matter in the city, to start educating the people on what this is all about, we can retain home control of such matters," said Pacelli, a strong supporter of home rule.

TV Aide Is Selected

Charles Whitlock, vice president and general manager of Western TV Cable, announced Monday the appointment of David DaPrato to the position of program director in charge of local television origination in South San Francisco.

Da Prato will produce for the communities interest, locally developed television shows involving sports, public affairs, entertainment and special events. Local resident participation in these programs will play a prominent role in local origination.

David, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emo Da Prato, is a lifelong resident of South San Francisco. His father is principal of Alta Loma Jr. High School.

'Cycle Flips, 1 Killed

One youth was killed and another slightly injured when the motorcycle they were riding was purposely flipped on its side to avoid a head-on collision with a car in Daly City on Sunday.

Sixteen-year-old Steven Chase, of 372 Higate Drive, Daly City, was a passenger on a motorcycle being operated by his neighbor, Marco Simonetti, 17, of 335 Higate Drive.

The boys were driving down Southgate Avenue about 7 p.m. when the motorcycle went out of control near the corner of Southgate and Mayfield avenues and swerved across the center line directly in the path of an oncoming car.

Driver of the car, Herbert J. Trautner, 35 of 22 Shelbourne Avenue, told police he saw the motorcycle heading towards him and stopped.

The youths and the motorcycle went sprawling and sliding in three different directions with Chase ending up under the car.

Chase, a Westmoor High School student, was pronounced dead on arrival at Mary's Help Hospital, police said.

Authorities are continuing their investigation of the mishap.

Arrests Follow Broadcast Of Pacifica Armed Robbery

Two Oakland men were apprehended by a sheriff's deputy north of Half Moon Bay Sunday 15 minutes after Pacifica police broadcast information on an armed robbery.

Taken into custody by deputy Darrell Butler were Floyd X. Richards, 31, 1127 Foothill Boulevard, and William Johnson, 24, 8411 McArthur Boulevard, both in Oakland.

The pair was charged with the armed robbery of the Tim P. Sullivan residence at 336 Moana Way in Pacifica, at 11:30 a.m.

Police in Pacifica said two men had knocked at Sullivan's front door, then forced their way inside as Sullivan responded.

The victim said one man had what appeared to be a 38-caliber revolver.

Sullivan reportedly fled to a neighbor's home, and called police, after a brief scuffle with Richards, who had attempted to handcuff him.

The man with the gun was said to be in the bedroom at the time, looking for money. The victim said $80 was missing.

The two men left the house when Sullivan ran next door to the Alfred Sito home at 332 Moana. They drove toward Half Moon Bay.

Fifteen minutes later, Deputy Butler was patrolling north on Cabrillo Highway, three miles north of Half Moon Bay, when he heard the Pacifica police broadcast of the armed robbery.

Shortly afterward, Butler saw a green station wagon that fit the vehicle description in the broadcast and he brought it to a halt a half-mile north of Half Moon Bay.

Both men, Butler said, advanced toward him. He ordered both to lie down on the ground. Johnson hesitated, claiming to be an Oakland law enforcement officer, working narcotics. The authorities said he handed Butler a business card with the name of an Oakland officer, Richard Castle.

Half Moon Bay police, in the meantime, had arrived and the two suspects were searched. The authorities said Richards possessed $335 and Johnson $22 (in $1 bills).

A search of the roadside was started, and another half a mile north, a pair of handcuffs was found on the west side of the roadway.

No gun was found. Suspects said they never had one.

Laguna Trustees Thank 13 Senators

The trustees of the Laguna Salada Elementary School District in Pacifica have thanked 13 state senators who opposed AB 1001 in the 1970 session.

They also sent the same letter to two San Mateo County legislators who voted for the measure, which the coastal community's school board believed would have seriously affected the educational program.

The board hopes Assemblymen Leo Ryan and Carl Britschgi will respond to points in the letter, according to District Supt. James R. Brien.

"This bill would have perpetuated the problems of the Laguna Salada Union School District as a low-wealth district, and would have provided unequal educational opportunity among the pupils of the state," wrote Chairman Sidney Lorvan on the board's behalf.

Acknowledging that there were other "objectional" points, he cited some examples of a typical low-wealth district's objections.

All districts were frozen to a base year expenditure (1969-1970) which provided an extremely unequal base for future expenditures, as well as a substandard base for the low wealth districts.

The Laguna Salada district was able to balance its budget for 1969-70 only by eliminating $200,000 of the educational services that had been offered by the district prior to 1969, and by falling further behind the average salaries paid to classified and certificated employes in this area.

The district in 1969-70 ranked 86th out of 86 districts in class size reported in the Greater Bay Area. The proposed legislation would have committed Laguna Salada permanently to those and other inequities in establishing the base.

The "cost of living" increase would have resulted in greater inequities rather than solving them. The district was able to spend $564 per pupil for education in 1969-70 compared to $1,008 in a neighboring wealthy district.

Trees Drive Is Endorsed By Chamber

The San Bruno-Millbrae Junior Chamber of Commerce (Jaycees) has endorsed the San Bruno Trees Time Five reforestation drive initiated by Mrs. Norma Griffith.

Mrs. Griffith had been invited to explain her project by Jaycee President Ed Nightingale and Vice President Frank Prisco Jr.

The Jaycees pledged "willing hands" to help with the planting, scheduled to begin the first weekend in November. They offered also to provide a pickup truck to transport trees to planting areas.

Mrs. Griffith said the San Bruno branch of Bank of California has opened a checking account in the name of Tree Times Five to receive direct cash donations to help defray the cost of the trees.

Bruno Salute To Aviation October 4

San Bruno's 5th annual salute to the aviation industry is set for the week of October 4 through 10. The week was recently proclaimed "Aviation Appreciation Week" within the city.

Co-chairmen for the Chamber of Commerce sponsored event Lloyd Ghiselli, PG&E manager, and Norman Merkel, chief controller, FAA at nearby San Francisco International Airport, have announced a series of special events.

On Sunday, October 4, a Trans-World Airlines Jetliner will take off with city, county and aviation officials aboard for a cocktail and hors d'oeurves scenic flight.

Airlines serving the airport will again place air travel displays in downtown San Bruno stores. Merchants are also attempting to get static displays for a city parking lot.

As in previous years, open house will be held by some of the airlines and the FAA control tower.

Capping the week's activities on Friday, October 9, will be the 5th annual Aviation Appreciation Week Banquet, featuring world flight record holder Col. Robert (Fox) Stephens as honored guest speaker. Colonel Stephens will speak on the supersonic (SST) development program.

Colonel Stephens is stationed at the Boeing Company in Seattle. He is assisting in the development of the nation's commercial air carrier. The colonel holds the official world absolute speed record, as well as the sustained altitude record for aircraft.

The banquet, to be held at the airport Hilton Hotel's Gold Ball Room is open to the public. Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce for $9. The prime rib dinner will follow a no-host cocktail hour at 7 p.m.

An after dinner reception and entertainment will be hosted by the airlines in the new Terrace Room at the conclusion of the dinner program. Musical entertainment will be provided by the PSA Gallery, a vocal quartet.

On October 1, a golf tournament is scheduled, in cooperation with the Airport Executives' Club, at Crystal Springs Golf Course. Tee off time is 1 p.m. and green fees are $4.50. Persons interested in playing should contact the San Bruno Chamber of Commerce.

D.C. Crossing Closed For Rebuilding

The St. Charles Freeway overcrossing from San Francisco to Daly City will be closed as of October 19 due to construction of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District terminus station.

In the near future other streets in the 13-acre Knowles Avenue BARTD site will be closed as construction progresses, a city spokesman said.

Meanwhile, St. Francis Boulevard at Skyline will also be closed starting September 30, as construction starts on the final link of the Cabrillo Freeway.

St. Francisco has been used as a temporary thoroughfare for the freeway, pouring large volumes of cars onto residential streets in the area and causing traffic hazards to citizens there.

It is anticipated that Hickey Boulevard will act as an alternate route during this construction, a spokesman said.

Permit Is Held Up

Action on the application of Pacific Cement and Aggregates Company for renewal of its quarry permit for its Rancho Canada de Guadalupe la Visitacion y Rodeo Viejo site one mile northwest of Brisbane was continued again Thursday by the San Mateo County Planning Commission.

A decision on the renewal has been pending for several months while the firm attempts to work out a satisfactory haul route through Brisbane with city officials.

Negotiations are still in progress, it was reported Thursday, and the matter was continued to October 28.

Partitions

Purchase of partitions for the Woodrow Wilson school, built to operate under a "new concept of the cluster" in 1968, was authorized by Jefferson Elementary School Board of Trustees in Daly City.

S.S.F. To Build Disposal Station

Plans have been announced by South San Francisco Scavenger Company president George Stagnaro to build a solid waste disposal transfer station in the city.

Stagnaro told councilmen of his intentions after they had begun another rehashing on the possibilities of constructing an incinerator within the city.

Former City Manager Tom McKenzie had told the councilmen he had made a phone call to Montreal, Canada, in order to get specific information on the operation of that city's incinerator.

McKenzie informed the councilmen, who were of the impression the incinerator had been in operation since last April, that the plant opened on September 16.

According to McKenzie's report, the reason for the delay was because of construction problems.

McKenzie said he also had talked with a salesman for Rust Engineering, the firm that proposed an incinerator construction plan in South San Francisco about coming to discuss incineration with the council.

He said the man had told him he would be busy taking tours through the Montreal plant and the earliest time he would be available to visit South San Francisco was October 19. Councilmen instructed McKenzie to set up a hearing at that time.

McKenzie then referred the councilmen to Stagnaro who told the councilmen the problem of garbage disposal is "acute and now."

He said that even if incineration does get off the ground in South San Francisco it won't be operational for up to five years.

"A transfer station for us right now is the only way out," said Stagnaro. He said he has a half-million-dollar investment in a transfer station operation.

This will include purchase of approximately 2¼ acres of land for a transfer point. Stagnaro said he has three trailers and two semi trucks on order and an architect is now working on a proposed metal-type building.

Mayor Patrick Ahern suggested to Stagnaro that this financial outlay may be for naught if the incineration plan is adopted.

Stagnaro said he doubted if incineration would make it because, according to him, there isn't a form of incineration that can be accomplished cheaper than the present landfill operations. He said transferring could easily cost $6 a ton.

Roadwork In SSF Slated

South San Francisco councilmen have agreed with a county road department negotiated payment price on two land purchase settlements necessary for construction of the extension of Westborough Boulevard.

Through negotiations administered by the county, the city will pay $130,000 for acquisition of three parcels from Marino Donati and Julia Donati, including the estate of the late Sevarino Donati.

The property is located on the southside of Camaritas Avenue at El Camino Real.

In the other settlement, the city will pay $10,320 to the Crocker Citizens National Bank for a parcel on the southeast corner of Chestnut Avenue and Antoinette Lane.

According to City Attorney John Noonan the right-of-way land purchases for the Westborough extension are part of a joint powers agreement with the county, in which the county takes care of acquisition but payment for these particular parcels comes out of the city treasury.

$50 Reward For Vandals

The Jefferson Union High School District will offer a $50 reward for information leading to the "determination of the identity and apprehension of any person who willfully damages and destroys school property."

It is another attempt by the district to thwart the mounting incidence of vandalism at Daly City and Pacifica campuses, explained Dr. Harold C. Tonini, assistant superintendent.

Loan To Broadmoor Police

A temporary loan of $85,000 to keep the Broadmoor Police Department in operation until taxes come in this winter was approved last week by the County Board of Supervisors.

The board, however, balked at the request of the Point Montara Fire Protection District for a $10,500 loan and postponed action for one week.

The Broadmoor request came in August 4, at which time the board asked County Manager M. D. Tarshes for a report on the practice of the county loaning money to special districts in advance of taxes. Tarshes reported last week that the Broadmoor tax rate, restricted by statute, "is barely, if at all, sufficient to operate an effective police force."

"While some agencies and districts should be able to accumulate reserves, this does not seem to be feasible in this particular case."

Tarshes said the district could sell tax anticipation notes at up to 7 per cent interest "but it appears that this would add one more burden to the district's already heavily strained budget."

Mobile Homes

Harang Engineering Corp. of San Bruno has started construction on the first of a series of mobile home parks that will feature the character of the areas in which they are built.

Robbed In Parking Lot, Police Told

A 54-year-old vacationer from Southern California reported to San Bruno police that he was robbed early in the morning in the parking lot of Lyons Restaurant, 751 San Bruno Avenue.

Police said Wesley W. Taylor reported the loss of $30 and a wrist watch. He reported the incident at 9:30 a.m. but said it occurred at about 1 a.m. According to police, the victim said he was tired and scared and instead of immediately reporting the robbery he went to his motel to bed.

It was reported that two Negro males approached the victim from the rear. One held what appeared to be a .45 caliber revolver.

Police said both were described at about 25 to 30 years old and of average height and weight. One pulled a turtleneck sweater up over his nose. The other pulled a knit seaman's cap down over his eyes. The cap had slits for eye holes.

According to the victim, the suspects were last seen running toward the post office nearby.

Sheriff Facing Lawsuit

A $1,250,000 suit for damages was filed in Superior Court last week in behalf of a South San Francisco man who claims he suffered a broken back when he was "assaulted by sheriff's deputies" in county jail last June 4.

The suit, filed by attorney Michael J. Kutsko for Donald Studendorff, 22, of 826 Camaritas Circle, names as defendants Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore, Deputy Alvin Green Jr., and 10 John Doe deputies.

Studendorft was arrested May 22 by Daly City police on charges of credit card forgery. On July 9 he was declared to be a narcotics addict. The criminal charges were suspended and he was sent to the California Rehabilitation Center at Tehachapi for treatment.

The lawsuit alleges that on June 4, While Studendorff was still in jail, Green "wilfully and brutally assaulted, attacked, violently beat and struck plaintiff without cause or provocation causing . . . great personal injuries . . . including a broken back and multiple contusions." The suit asks $250,000 general damages and $1 million exemplary and punitive damages.

Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore denied today that Studendorff was assaulted. Jail records show, he said, that the prisoner fell from his bunk and struck his back against a toilet. X-rays showed that there was no fracture but that Studendorff had suffered a lumbar strain, the sheriff said.

Safeway Mgrs. Move

Two North San Mateo County residents who are Safeway Store managers are being promoted to larger stores.

Joseph Fillo, Jr., of Colma, a 17-year veteran employee of the food firm, has been promoted to manager of the Williams Street, San Francisco unit. Fillo started with Safeway as a food clerk in 1953, was advanced to assistant store manager, then was appointed store manager in 1964.

Eugene E. Walker of Daly City replaces Fillo as manager of the Twenty-fourth and Potrero Streets, San Francisco Safeway unit. Walker has worked for Safeway since 1960. He was appointed store manager in San Francisco in 1967.

Youth Is Cleared In Fatality

A 17-year-old motorist has been cleared of all charges by the San Mateo County District Attorney's Office in the traffic death of a nine-year-old South San Francisco boy.

Police had cited David James Jeffers, of 703 Linden Avenue, South San Francisco to Hillcrest Youth Guidance Center following the accident which took the life of Richard Byron, son of Walter J. Byron, of 128 Ramona Avenue, about 9 p.m. on the night of August 28.

Jeffers was subsequently released to the custody of his parents.

Combined investigation of the accident by the county District Attorney and Youth Probation Department recommended all charges be dismissed in the case.

The young victim was struck by a car driven by Jeffers on Sonora Avenue after he apparently darted into the road while roller skating.

Bruno Girl Runs Away On A Horse

Pacifica Police Sgt. Tony Guardino was driving home at 5 p.m. Thursday, after working on a case, when he suddenly spotted a horse and rider galloping southbound in the wrong Coast Highway lane.

He radioed a regular patrol unit — Officer Floyd McElroy — to check out a horse and a juvenile, which, McElroy admitted was a bit unusual at five in the morning.

The patrolman found a 16-year-old San Bruno girl, a runaway, astride a horse she claimed was taken in Millbrae.

Scared and vague about her runaway plans and reasons, she said her intent was only to "borrow" the horse, which she claimed to have ridden with the owner's permission, in the past.

She apparently sneaked out of her home, after trouble with her parents earlier, at 11 p.m. She went after the horse, saddled it and headed for the Coastside.

Arson Seen In Bruno Fire

San Bruno fire officials said today they suspected a fire at the rear of a garage at 784 Second Avenue was set intentionally yesterday.

The blaze, reported at 11:12 p.m., was confined to the exterior rear wall of the garage, attached to a vacant house, firemen said.

A fire official said two persons had been seen sprinkling what proved to be gasoline on the wall.

Damage was estimated at $200.

Mother—Son Breakfast

The mothers and sons breakfast, being sponsored by the members of the Holy Angels Women's Guild, will be held this Sunday morning, according to Mrs. John Logamarsino, the guild's publicity chairman.

The event is part of a program to break down the idea of having only mother-daughter programs and father-son events. The mother-son breakfast will not replace the traditional mother-daughter meetings but will widen the scope of activities available for mothers to participate in with their boys Mrs. Logamarsino explained.

This Sunday's breakfast will be held in the parish hall following the 9 a.m. mass and all mothers, whether they are guild members or not, are invited to attend with ther sons.

Mrs. Gerald Delfino, guild president, is in charge of this occasion and Mrs. John Provenzale is accepting reservations.

The tickets are being sold for $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. Call your reservations in to Mrs. Provenzale, 756-3144, prior to Saturday.

DR. PHILLIS BOURNE, M.D., has been named the volunteer for the month by the Mary's Help Hospital Guild, according to Mrs. Shelly Mangini, chairman of public relations for the guild.

Dr. Bourne, a retired physician, was instrumental in reactivating the Louise De Marillac Guild which, in 1950, became the Mary's Help Hospital Guild. She was elected the guild's president and presided for two terms.

When her successor was unable to continue in the post, Dr. Bourne assumed the duties once more. For her efforts on behalf of the guild, she was named one of four lifetime honorary members of guild during a ceremony held last year.

Dr. Bourne practiced medicine in San Francisco, and when she elected to terminate her practice she accepted the position of medical officer for San Francisco State College. She served the college for 11 years before completely retiring. She has been both an outstanding member of the Mary's Help Hospital staff and, since retiring, and an outstanding volunteer.

While honoring Dr. Bourne, guild members also have been welcoming new volunteers to the membership roll. Among those joining the guild this fall are Mrs. Ronald Barela, Mrs. Fay Betts, Mrs. Lawrence Canepa, Ellen Blake, Mrs. Howard Feiner, Mrs. Douglas Fear, Margaret Gallagher, Mrs. Angelo Giorgi, Mrs. Robert Gaillard, Kathy Kakos, Mrs. Virgil Maffei, Mrs. Richard Miller, Susan Mifsud, Mrs. Elizabeth Mullen, Mrs. John Muscat, Mrs. Rene Pas and Mrs. Howard Poblitz.

Also initiated into membership were Mrs. Dante Sciandri, Claire Seiler, Elinor Sheuerman, Mrs. McRobert Stewart, Mrs. George Thomoleas, Mrs. Steven Turover, Mae Varni, Francine Weil and Mrs. Julius Ziegler.

Committee chairmen are pleased by the new inflex of members and they are recruiting helpers for the various guild projects. Among those seeking talented craftswomen are Mrs. Thelma Cranna, chairman of tray favors; Mrs. Joseph Schott, whose committee will produce the fall "event" planned for October, and Mrs. William Corbett who is in charge of the Christmas Boutique.

Other committee chairmen are Mrs. Clifton West, program chairman; Mrs. Phillip Coniglio, chairman of the bingo luncheon; Mrs. Edward Fuchs, chairman of the Christmas party; Mrs. Milly Dunow, Christmas card sale chairman; Mrs. Coniglio, who will produce the Fuchsia Ball, and Mrs. Frank Ingalls who will lead the committee planning the annual Day At the Races.

Louanne Heath's Datebook

MR. AND MRS. HARRY IVERSON are the host and hostess for the October meetings of the Fifty Plus Club in Pacifica. The Iversons will be on hand at the morning meeting on October 13, as well as at a Halloween party October 27.

A special luncheon program is being planned for October 18 at 12:15 p.m. in the Pacifica Manor school.

According to club's president, Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, the proceeds from this luncheon gathering will be used to help meet the expense of giving the Christmas Party for the World War I veterans in the Menlo Hospital for Veterans.

This party is a traditional undertaking of the Fifty Plus group and one most rewarding to all concerned. Mrs. Calhan urges everyone to take advantage of this opportunity to assist these "forgotten men." Cost of the luncheon will be $1.75.

S.S.F. Police To Discuss Drug Abuse

St. Veronica's Women's Club will meet on Thursday at 8 p.m. in the school cafetorium on Alida Way to hear Sgt. James Swinfard of the South San Francisco Police Department.

Sgt. Swinfard will give a slide presentation on drug abuse.

Mrs. Edward Tempone, membership chairman, announced that last month Mrs. Kenneth Lucia joined the St. Veronica's Women's Club.

Hostesses for the evening will be the members of St. Anne's Circle, Mrs. Edward Rodondi, chairman.

The club's fashion show, "Serendipity '70," and luncheon will be held October 10 at the Airport Marina Hotel in Burlingame.

Mrs. Harness has planned the fashion show to begin at 12:30 p.m., with doors to open at 11:30 a.m. for cocktails, followed by the luncheon.

Reservations may be obtained from Mrs. Richard Gomes, 221 Fernwood Drive, San Bruno, or Mrs. Orel Jackson, 301 Fernwood Drive, San Bruno.

PLANNING St. Veronica Women's Club annual fashion show and luncheon September 10 with President Mrs. Glesener (right, on sofa) are members of the club's fashion show committee, Chairman Mrs. John Harness (seated on floor) and (left to right) Mrs. Russell Tetreault, Mrs. John Venemeyer and Mrs. John Immel. Members and officers of the P-TA Units and other Daly City personnel working with drug abuse programs are encouraged to attend.

Bavarian Festival Planned At Hope Church In D.C.

Bavaria is a land of contrasts. The towering Alps and the lowlands, the modernity and the traditionalism, the solemnity of Passion Play and the gaiety of Bavarian music make it a tourist's delight.

In Bavarian fashion, Hope Church in Daly City hopes to please all visitors with its October Festival which has a Bavarian theme and features a Bavarian dinner. In the style of Bavaria, here will be contrast and variety in entertainment, but unlike the temperament of the mountain country, the festival will have only one mood: that of fun and fellowship.

To be held October 16, from 5 to 11 p.m., at Hope Social Hall, 55 San Fernando Way, Daly City, the festival will provide community residents and people living in the North County an occasion to join together for dinner and entertainment.

The dinner, served from 5:30 to 8 p.m. will feature German food and a special apple strudel. This dessert will also be served separately for those who cannot attend the dinner. Games, door prizes, baked goods, a flea market, a boutique, and special booths will provide entertainment. Decorations in the Bavarian motif will help establish the mood of the festival.

Mrs. Evelyn Bijak and Tom Fine are co-chairmen.

Tickets (adults, $1.75 and children, $1) are now on sale at Hope Church.

The proceeds from the festival will be used to enrich the lives of many other people through the world of worldwide missions.

Westmoor High Notes

Veteran District Teacher Shifts

Westmoor High School has only one new teacher to the district for the '70-'71 school year. Fred Kennelly, who replaces William McKeever, is teaching survey of science, physical science, and chemistry.

Westmoor is not Kennelly's first teaching assignment. After graduation from San Francisco State, he taught in Balboa (student teacher), Lowell (summer school), and James Lick Junior High School.

New to Westmoor, but not to the Jefferson Union High School District is Durant Moseley, the oldest teacher, in terms of service, to the district. Moseley is teaching all the electronics classes at Westmoor, as well as one class in woodwork.

Two teachers have returned to Westmoor. Mrs. Joann Egenes, who had been on a year's leave of absence, returned to teach English, while Al Reynolds, who had retired from teaching to go into private business, has come back to teach part time in the science department.

Miss Shirley Minaker, who had been the counselor at Thornton, has exchanged schools with Mrs. Judy Peterson, for a year. Miss Minaker, who formerly taught physical education at Westmoor is teaching English and counseling students whose last names begin with D, E, F, G.

An updated, new style, Westmoor handbook has been given to the members of the class of 1974 in their freshman Eastern Civilization classes.

The familiar Westmoor Ram still adorns the cover, but aside from that the handbook has been completely changed. Replacing the glossy cover with photo-offset pages of 4"x7" is a mimeographed booklet of standard 8½"x11" size. By using this type of material, the students will be able to keep it among their papers and more important, additions, and corrections may be quickly and easily made.

The fall '70 student body officers and Assistant Principal — Guidance Paul Perez; the new director of student activities, George Simon, and Dick Connors worked during the summer to update the book and have it ready in September for the incoming freshmen.

Concluding the handbook is a section of school policies, such as closed campus and room passes.

Although the book is far more comprehensive than the old one, an addendum is already planned to include information on the Christmas Drive, Spirit Week and the Spring Festival.

"The old handbook really didn't provide a quick reference to be used by a student when he needed the answer to a question about school. By changing the format and revising the contents, we hope that it will be more useful," explains Jim Musslewhite, the fall student body president, who worked on the revision committee.

Drama At Terra Nova

Terra Nova has many phenomenons, but one of the most unique is David Campbell, driving force of the Drama Department, and well known campus celebrity.

Campbell came to Terra Nova in 1963 as an English teacher. His dramatic teaching career began that same year, when a student asked him to direct the Senior play.

The historic play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," was a success, and received such enthusiastic response from students that requests to form a drama class were made, and enough students signed up to create two beginning classes the following fall.

Those first drama classes Campbell reveals, were held in the cafeteria, and were confused and experimental.

But after six years of grease-paint, elbow grease, and successful productions, he has raised the TN drama department from its humble beginnings.

Now in his seventh year of drama instruction, he teaches drama full-time, including a theatre-workshop adult school course every Thursday night. Campbell's drama classes have a following of 180 eager drama enthusiasts.

The TN Drama Department, now highly active, turns out two school plays and a drama festival annually. Additional TN Drama activities include the annual Christmas Minstrel Troupe composed of 150 or more costumed, spirited drama students disguised as elves, minstrels, gypsies, medieval dancers, "Uncle Wigglies" and other goodies, who visit hospitals, elementary schools, and rehabilitation centers during the Christmas season, to spread a little joy and happiness.

The Halloween Spook House that the Family Service Agency holds each year is another annual TN Drama activity.

TN Drama students are always prepared to provide practically any form of entertainment, ranging from local events—such as marching in Pacifica parades or performing an evening of improvisations at AAUW banquets— to providing a New York commercial artist with mimes for his museum exhibit.

Coastside Nuptial Site For Couple

Oregon and Washington are the honeymoon destinations of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Severson (Carol Lee Cardoni) who were married at Our Lady of the Pillar Church in Half Moon Bay. A reception followed at the I.D.E.S. Hall in that city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cardoni of Half Moon Bay and the benedict is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Severson of San Mateo.

Carol's wedding gown was white organza over taffetta featuring Chantilly lace on the long sleeves and detachable train edging.

Maid of honor was JoAnn Nunes and bridesmaids were Laurie Cardoni, sister of the bride, and Genevra McCahon. All wore pale lilac organza gowns with boat necklines, tiered sleeves, and velvet trimmed bodices.

Best man was John Bentley and ushers included Don Parker and Jack Holmes.

The new matron is a graduate of Half Moon Bay High School and the College of San Mateo. Also a CSM graduate, Kent attended San Mateo High School. Judy Mayfield is his sister.

The couple will live in San Carlos.

Jefferson's Boosters Set Meeting

The Jefferson High School Booster Club will meet at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, in the cafeteria.

Nomination and election of officers will be featured.

It is to be an open meeting for all parents of students at Jefferson High School, and other persons in the community interested in enriching and assisting the school, promoting such activities as may be necessary to raise funds for the organization's objectives, providing for the community of JHS an opportunity to get better acquainted.

SHS Seniors Making Plans

Serramonte High School's first seniors are making plans for a busy year.

Already a senior breakfast has been held at Denny's at the Serramonte Shopping Center — the new term's first senior activity.

Several ideas were mentioned at the first general senior class meeting, with possibilities ranging from a spaghetti dinner to a graduation-time Disneyland trip. There also was discussion on a senior picnic and of a music festival.

THE DAVID OLSONS (Daleen Sly)

Clubwomen Tour Tahoe Wednesday

The Penny Pines country and Lake Tahoe will be the destinations of the Golden Gate District, California Federation of Women's Clubs today.

Part of a conservation tour, the trip also will include a journey to the Penny Pines plantations through Taylor Creek Center and Stream Profile Chamber. For years the groups has helped reforest the plantations.

A picnic lunch and overnight accommodations at Lake Tahoe Inn on the stateline will be included in the tour.

Federated club members interested in making the trip may contact Mrs. Joseph Barca of Millbrae, district chairman of conservation, who is handling the event.

Local departure time this morning is 8 with buses leaving the parking lot across from the Millbrae Library. Buses will depart San Francisco at 9 a.m. from the Civic Auditorium, Larkin and Grove Streets.

Miss Sly Wed, To Live In Minnesota

A home in St. Paul, Minn. awaits Mr. and Mrs. David C. Olson who are honeymooning at Disneyland, Salt Lake City and Mt. Rushmore after their recent marriage at Calvary Lutheran Church.

The former Daleen JoAnne Sly, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale W. Sly of San Bruno. Her bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Olson of Munising, Mich. who traveled from the Midwest for their son's wedding.

Daleen recited her vows in an organza and peau d'ange gown trimmed with blue satin ribbon and seed pearls. A high scalloped neckline, Empire waist, A-line skirt and long lace sleeves completed her costume which was accented by a detachable train trimmed with Alencon lace.

Jane Peters was the honor attendant for her cousin and she set the style of dress for the secondary attendants in an aqua Empire A-line outfit. Bridesmaids were Judy Coulter of San Francisco, Mrs John Gillespie of Carmichael and Debra Olson, sister of bridegroom.

Best man was David S. Negilski of Corvallis, Ore. and ushers were Jack A. Benson of Denver, Colo., Kenneth Sly of San Bruno, the bride's brother, and John Vanlandschoot of San Francisco.

Amont the guests at the wedding and reception at the El Rancho in Millbrae was the bride's grandmother, Mrs. L. A. Wilder of Salinas.

Daleen and David will live in St. Paul while he finishes law school at the University of Minnesota. The benedict earned his bachelors degree in psychology from the University of Michigan and was graduated from Mather High in Munising.

The new Mrs. Sly is a Capuchino High School graduate, who merited her bachelors in science from Hillsdale College in Michigan. She received her masters degree in mathematics from the University of Michigan.

Karen Olson is the sister of the benedict.

Bruno's De Luxe Menu Popular With Patrons

Bruno Fava, owner-chef of Bruno's in downtown San Mateo, believes in sparing no cost while providing his guests with only the best. Yet, he somehow manages to do exactly that with exceptionally low menu prices. Only U.S.D.A. Choice or Prime graded meats are served, but prices for broiler items range from just $3.75 to $4.95 for a complete dinner. Prime Rib of Beef is served on Fridays and Saturdays only. There is also a wide variety of seafood items, and, of course, Bruno's delightful Italian delicacies (served both a la carte and on the dinner). Bruno's new restaurant policy is not being open on Sunday. However, you will find excellent luncheon and dinner service the remaining six days of the week. Plenty of free parking is available at the rear of the restaurant . . .

Bruno Fava

Margie Brandon, the classy Clancy's organist, has more "notes" at her command than a bank loan officer, and she puts them out nightly in her new Clancy's "entertainment nest." One stop at this pop Powell Street club and you're a steady from there on in . . . Since the opening of Bay Meadows race meet, and being situated right at the "head of the stretch," Betty's Pic n' Pan restaurant has been selling everything except the lease during the morning, noon and evening meals.

Liberace Is Ringsider At S.F. Finocchio's

It was an exciting night at Finocchio's when the ringsiders spotted Liberace in the audience. Introduced by Carroll Wallace, "Lee," who dropped by with friends for the third show, stood up to take a bow and to show off his fabulous peppermint-stick striped jacket. Liberace was surrounded by fans as he signed autographs in the lobby after the show and nearly lost his sleeve as one of the excited fans tried for one of his cufflinks . . . Italian dinners are offered nightly at Romano's Italian restaurant in Pacifica's Rockaway Beach, with owner Enrico Romano often spending many hours each day in the kitchen, preparing the delicious sauces and meats . . . Ernie Nevers, former Stanford football star, was a featured speaker last Sunday at a 49er Pre-game Brunch held at Hyatt House Burlingame. This Sunday, prior to the contest with the Cleveland Browns, Former Receiver R. C. Owens will be the guest speaker. The Brunch, served from 9 a.m., is open to the public. Bus transportation to the 49er game is provided. . . . If you have a small group or as many as 40 persons in your party, the Wine Dining Room at Atherton's elegant Cote D'Azur restaurant is an impressive place to entertain.

Liberace

The tremendous volume of hungry hordes that keep Vince's Italian and Sea Foods bustling is ably handled by the teamwork of the entire Licata family, headed up by Vince, his wife, Nina, and sons Tony and Louis. Imagination and skill are combined here to lift every items above the ordinary. "Famous for good food" takes on meaning at Vince's, whether you partake of a dinner or a huge hamburger on French bread . . . The Pepper Steak is possibly one of the choicest dishes of head chef Salvador Sandavol and his brother, Abel, at Scotty Campbell's in Redwood City. Broiled Mahi Mahi and the Highlander Sirloin are other outstanding recipes of the Sandavols. If Prime Ribs of Beef is your preference, you've come to the right place when drawing up a chair here . . . Watching those calories? You can maintain a regular diet of low-calorie goodies at the Iron Rail, on Middlefield Rd. in Redwood City, and still enjoy a tasty meal. This busy restaurant-lounge features a six-ounce Ground Round Steak Mondays through Saturdays (includes lettuce, tomato and cottage cheese) which fills the bill — and is filling . . . Complete a la carte menu is served daily from 11 a.m. at Woodlake Joe's, located in Woodlake Shopping Center, San Mateo. Luncheon or dinner can be as simple as a sandwich, a bowl of minestrone, a salad, or as grand as a huge Rib Steak. Ample free parking.

Belmont Whistle Stop Fried Chicken Recipe

Restaurant owner Leo Martay must be doing something right! Not only does he own the always bustling Whistle Stop in Belmont, but he has recently added a new type of food service to the premises. It's a Famous Recipe Fried Chicken take-out service, which is adjacent to the Whistle Stop (Ralston Avenue side). Special grand opening prices of the Famous Recipe Fried Chicken are in effect through tonight. Savings range from 35 cents for one regular dinner to $1.70 if you buy four. Remember, the special opening prices are in effect through tonight, and the restaurant is open until 10 p.m. . . . Yolanda's Terminal Cafe, located in the Golden Gate Produce Terminal, contines to serve excellent family-style Italian dinners. Entrees include meats and fowl, plus soup, salad, garden-fresh vegetable, paste and a seven ounce bottle of wine. The popular South San Francisco restaurant is open seven days a week serving dinners from 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday; Sundays, from 3 p.m. . . . Russell Ach, hosting a party of 16 for dinner at Doros, turned the tables on Doros boss Don Dianda when he learned it was Don's birthday Ach had a cake and candles for Don as his party sang "Happy Birthday."

Sahara-Tahoe Plans For Winter Weekends

Kicking off the winter weekend-headliner season in the Sahara-Tahoe Hotel's High Sierra Theater, October 2 - 3, will be country-western stars Boots Randolph, Homer and Jethro and The Nashville Brass. The new showroom policy includes screening of first-run movies during the week (opening October 7 will be "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever," starring Barbra Streisand) and appearances by top name stars on weekends. Headliners already signed for weekend appearances in the High Sierra Theater include Buck Owens, Buddy Hackett, and Jack Benny . . . Riviera Hotel announced the signing of Liza Minnelli, Dean Martin, Barbra Streisand, Burt Bacharach and Engelbert Humperdinck for its upcoming winter season of entertainment in the Versailles Room. The Riv is also inches away from one of the most important entertainment deals its ever negotiated . . . Harpist Susan Mazer will appear Monday through Friday from 5 p.m. until 9 p.m. in the Tudor Room at the Palace Corner of the Sheraton-Palace. A winner of a four-year fellowship at Stanford University, Miss Mazer plays everything from classical works to contemporary sounds. Al Trobbe and his orchestra continue to play for dancing Friday and Saturday evenings from 9 p.m.

Buddy Hackett

The impressive array of golf trophies that line the back bar at Lew Lehr's Steak House in San Francisco's Marina District were all won by owner-host Lew Lehr. Lehr's most prized trophy is a 24 karat gold rooster he won in the big Nugget tournament. He's been offered $200 for it, but won't sell — at any price . . . In case you were wondering: Ernie and Ida Mangue have relocated their Ida's Seafood Grotto — and only a short distance from their former address in Half Moon Bay. The same delicious seafood, courteous service and friendly atmosphere are still available at this popular seafood grotto, which is situated in the Marina Drive In on Cabrillo Highway. Lunch and dinner is served Fridays, Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays from 12 noon to 9 p.m. . . . The gals really dig the romantic voice and good looks of Edmundo Rivan who entertains at the Shirt Tail restaurant in Palo Alto. The South American sings and plays guitar Tuesdays, Friday and Saturdays. Light classics and Latin tunes are his dinner music specialties. Gail and George Mirabus sing and entertain at the piano on Mondays

Grass Fires Keep Pacifica Firemen Busy

Pacifica firemen battled a 25-acre grass fire for 3½ hours Saturday afternoon midway into a busy weekend of 19 calls—most of them for grass blazes.

The firemen already had fought one major grass fire—at 5 a.m. Saturday, and a small blaze came in as they battled the 25-acre fire at 1:50 p.m.

The Saturday afternoon grass fire was fanned by moderate winds, keeping the 35 firemen from Pacifica and San Bruno on their toes.

Serramonte 'Arrives', S.S.F. Regains Pride

Warriors Respond, Down S-I

By JERRY LITTRELL

A determined team pride, the major factor missing in last season's South San Francisco High School football activities, may be the difference this year as the Warriors continue to point toward regaining the coveted league crown they held for five straight seasons.

"Early in the year we heard some people say that our offense may be okay but that our defense wouldn't be able to stop many opponents," grinned an extremely happy Ray DeJong, SSF coach. "We constantly point this out to our defensive unit. They have that gut-pride we lacked in key situations last season and they have responded well this year."

The Warriors couldn't have responded any better, actually. Gaining revenge for a one-touchdown loss last year at Kezar Stadium, DeJong's charges battered St. Ignatius, 22-0, on Friday at Clifford Field marking the second win and the second shutout for the title-hopeful Warriors.

The Wildcats must have salivated heavily upon seeing the Warriors' starting backfield. There was 5-6 Mike Senkir and 5-5 Al Arista who, when dripping wet, can almost together tip the scales at 270 pounds. But the intestinal fortitude of the Warrior runners last week was measured rather by the yard than the pound.

Smashing through the Wildcat line with fullback Wayne Cirdella, this trio accounted for 121 ground yards and two of the three SSF scores. senior quarterback Marty DeMerritt was letter-perfect. He picked spots to perfection and fed nine completed passes in just 13 tries for a poise-filled 133-yard total and one touchdown.

It was really all South City. St. Ignatius never got field position until nearly the end of the half as the Warrior defense had the Wildcats reeling like drunks from the opening whistle. SI fumbled three times in the first two series and didn't complete a pass until the half was almost over. Tackle Ken Conner and Joel Bruno led the charge that dropped SI quarterback Bob Tierney four times and forced him into numerous hurried throws.

Ends Rick Linamen, the son of a minister who hasn't learned many lessons on charity yet, and Tony Sotoa each caught three passes. Linamen did the open field heroics with sprawling snatches while Sotoa handled the heavy-traffic stuff as DeMerritt threaded the needle to him over the middle.

The Warriors even got a field goal this time. Dave Gard booted a 23-yarder in the third period as the rounded Warriors continue to go about the task of proving to everyone, including themselves, that the title may be headed back to South City.

Regents Get 20-0 Upset Over Aragon

By GARRY NIVER

The suffocating confines of the Serramonte team bus, its stifling atmosphere compounded with the addition of sweaty bodies, resounded with a very warm "Beat the Falcons."

And upstart Serramonte's hot enthusiasm paralleled the 90-degree Indian summer weather.

Coack Jack Thur young gridders made it two down and nine to go by authoring their way into the Peninsula prep football history book Friday afternoon with a 20-0 upset over veteran Aragon High School on the neutral San Mateo field.

And if, by luck or whatever, the young Regents should get by Crestmoor this Friday afternoon, they will have reached a milestone in their young career.

"We played varsity ball last year, but only as an independent," noted Thur. "We met mostly small schools, with the exception of Oceana and Jefferson, and finished up with a 2-6 record," Thur pointed out.

But the Regents have assuredly arrived in the bigtime and will fit in well with their North Peninsula League contemporaries. Friday's triumph over the Dons made them a perfect 2-0, thus equalling their novice record of 1969.

"I would have to credit our defense for today's victory," noted Thur. "We don't have a lot of depth," he added, "but we are enthusiastic."

The Regents outplayed the Dons at nearly every juncture, with the exception of the penalty box where Aragon hailed the king with 115 yards in minus assessments.

Displaying a gambling luck which creates winners, the Regents elected to try for a first down on a fourth and one situation on the Aragon 46 in the first period and won. From there, they marched the remaining yardage in six plays with end Ray Kirshenbaum hauling in a 16-yard strike from quarterback Ron Beltramo with 8:05 showing.

Serramonte came right back at the intermission when Beltramo hit speedy Wade Littleman with a three-yard flip with no time remaining.

The visitors charged back onto the scoreboard with 10:39 left in the final session when Elliott Mark angled into the right corner from seven yards out. Beltramo and Littleman teamed up on a pass for the conversion.

It must be said that Aragon quarterbacks Erik Craig and Dave Matisi had little chance to get it together as Regent defenders Dave Eichelberger and Steve Bouchard were in the Dons backfield all afternoon.

Beltramo was the standout for the afternoon as he hit on nine of 17 passes for 159 yards.

'We Stunk,' Says Ram Grid Coach

By JERRY LITTRELL

In the post-game self analysis one question that could be asked the Westmoor Rams is "Against Lowell High School you were (a) Outhustled (b) Outmuscled (c) Outfinessed (d) Trounced (e) Embarrassed or (f) all of these?"

Hint—circling "f" may be close to the truth for the Rams.

Participating in the first annual "Lake Merced Bowl," Westmoor was easily handled by Lowell's heady Indians, 49-20. As they say, it wasn't that close.

"We stunk," said Ram coach Pete Matisi. A brief but adequate description.

Lowell, which is supposed to finish second to Lincoln's Mustangs, came on like a team with something to prove in its initial outing. The bigger Rams fell prey to a halfback named Craig Tagawa, a 5-6, 135-pound senior, who scored four touchdowns on runs of 18, 1, 1 and 33 yards.

Possibly the most glaring fault as far as Westmoor was concerned was the way the Indians, who haven't anyone over 200 pounds listed in the program, handled many of the bigger and more experienced Ram linemen with embarrassing ease.

On defense it was the same situation. The heralded, but so far unproductive Ram front, gave little pressure to multi-talented quarterback Craig Kimball who had eons of time to throw for 130 yards and two touchdowns. He also kicked seven straight PATs.

Quarterback Mike Swallow fired the three Ram scores through the air. He hit end Bob McLennan on a 39-yard scoring pass, found Jeff Orlich on an 11-yarder and ended with a 15-yarder to end Dave Riley. The last two scores came after the Indians had taken a 41-6 lead.

"I can't remember the last time we played so poorly," admitted Matisi. "Hillsdale did it to us once back before the North and Mid-Peninsula Leagues split but it has to be our worse defeat in over 10 years."

CHARLEY FOX has some funny ideas. For instance, he has this crazy notion that when a player is on a big league roster he should know how to play the game and be given the opportunity to until he proves he can't. He also believes in such archaisms as: fundamentals, running, giving the game to the players (ie, don't over-manage), having fun playing the game, manager's not losing their tempers with players. and being honest with players.

Why, Fox even admits that a manager is only as good as his players.

Charley Fox also doesn't believe in double-talk; some Irish blarney, perhaps, an occasional avoidance of an issue, but no double-talk when he gets down to discussing a particular matter.

Charley Fox avoids mysticism. He cuts to the heart of matters. For instance, he believes in taking the eight men of a roster of 25 who best hit, field, run and throw, and playing them until they get hurt or tired or prove that they cannot do the job expected of them. He knows that 10 of those 25 men will be pitchers — four starters, three long relief men, three short relief men, at least one of which will be a left-handed "specialist." There will be three catchers, seven infielders and five outfielders.

HE BELIEVES that at the end of spring training a manager should explain to each individual exactly what will be expected of him and how he'll be used, and letting them know, "exactly how you're going to operate, and telling them, 'If you don't want the job we've outlined for you, tell me and we'll see if we can trade you, or we'll put you in the minors and let you play there.' "

And unlike some big league managers, Charley Fox sees nothing wrong in discussing his ball club — what is wrong with it, as well as what is right with it.

Obviously, Fox knows there is no need to discuss Giant hitting. But he thinks that it has been generally over-looked that the Giants are not any longer waiting for the homerun. When he took the club, he immediately put Tito Fuentes, Hal Lanier and Ron Hunt on their own hitting and running. And he put Fuentes, Bobby Bonds and Ken Henderson on their own stealing.

"You've got to let these young men do the things that God gave them the ability to do without hampering them looking for signs," he said.

Fox is also fast to admit that the Giants have done some pretty atrocious base running at times, and that they've lacked the doubleplay knack. The generally disappointing pitching of the past season is self-evident.

FOX DOESN'T MIND getting specific. Here's how he sums up the Giants, position-by-position:

Pitching: In this category, everythings depends on the youngsters. "When you're in a rebuilding process like we are, you just have to bear with the youngsters, with guys like Reberger, who's just coming into his own, with Pitlock, who before this season had pitched just 98 innings of professional ball in the minors. Carrithers is only 20, and just has to feel his way. Robinson has a tendency toward wildness. When he gets a hitter out, it's just because he over-powers him."

Fox believes that when everything falls into place with his young pitchers — and he believes everything will fall into place — it's going to mean more than just well pitched games, and that such a settling down will transcend such problems as the Astroturf.

For example, he doesn't lay all of the blame on the lack of Giant DP's on the infielders or the Astroturf. Much of it has to do with an inexperienced pitching staff and lack of control. If a rookie doesn't pitch to a hitter the way it was decided he was going to pitch to him in the pre-game meeting — whether it be a lack of control or memory or panic — there are going to be infielders out of position. If a kid can't keep the ball down, or can't get his breaking pitch over (a curve is more likely to be hit on the ground than a fast ball), there are going to be fewer opportunities for infielders to turn over DP's.

Catching: Fox looks on Dick Dietz as "a good, sound, big-

Clock Works Against An Oceana Win

The Oceana High School football team has learned the essence of time.

The Falcon gridders ran out of the valuable commodity on visiting Albany High School's eight-yard stripe Friday afternoon as the latter team held on for a 7-6 victory.

It was a see-saw battle all of the way with Oceana gaining control of the ball with just two seconds to go and with no time-outs left. And as the Sharks lined up for a final play field goal, the sands of time triggered the final gun.

However, the final gun didn't overshadow the individual performance of Oceana halfback Dave Williams. The senior led all rushers with 78 yards in 16 carries, set up and scored the Sharks' single touchdown with a 24-yard pass reception and returned a punt for 36 yards.

Oceana scored early in the second period when Williams plunged over from the two-yard line.

The visitors came charging back in the third period and completed a sustained drive with quarterback Len Patterson tossing a two-yard strike to end Shawn Rigley. Rigley then accounted for his seventh and most important point of the afternoon by kicking the extra point.

The Sharks will travel to Salesian this Friday and, hopefully, find better luck and more time.

Jefferson '11' Loses, 38-18 To San Mateo

By JERRY LITTRELL

San Mateo High School's offense wasn't supposed to be the explosive one of years gone by but even Bearcat coach Buzz Williams is blinking a little after a highly nonconservative effort yesterday against the Jefferson Indians.

The San Mateo eleven tallied six touchdowns with the closest coming from 19 yards away. When the foul-filled clambake was over the Bearcats had scampered by the Indians, 38-18, in a game that certainly wasn't artistic, but in football neatness doesn't get you any points.

Williams' lads committed several no-no acts and were caught 11 times by the refs for infractions. Jefferson, refusing to be bested in every department, got itself in trouble with the officials 12 times. There were a total of 230 yards assessed in penalties.

To add to Williams' frustrations, SMHS fumbled the ball

Hillsdale Defeats Terra Nova

By JOHN HORGAN

The young man is a throwback to an earlier, less-complicated time.

He is not given to issuing sets of non-negotiable demands. He is not noted for wearing unusually long hair or garish garb, using filthy talk or cultivating disrespect for authority.

Ed Kertel is, in a word, refreshing.

In an era when members of the coaching fraternity have found themselves dodging the slings and arrows of outspoken detractors, the staff at Hillsdale High School in San Mateo must silently give thanks daily for the presence of Kertel in its student body.

"He is a tremendous leader and a great individual," his football coach, Ron Anderson, said this week just prior to Friday afternoon's 46-7 non-league victory over Pacifica's Terra Nova.

"For his age, he is very level-headed and he knows what he wants. And that's the way he's headed."

"Ed is the kind of kid anyone would like," basketball coach Homer Zugelder noted. "He's not pretentious. He thinks about others all the time. He's not always thinking about himself. And he'll play any sport at any time, anywhere. He just loves to play."

If those paeans of praise sound a bit much it's because Kertel, a senior, has earned a unique place in his school which even students at the opposite end of the philosophic spectrum can respect.

"I sometimes get asked why I'm so straight," Kertel said, "But I rarely have any trouble with anyone at Hillsdale. I get along just fine."

"Sure, we have some druggusers at the school, but it's really not that bad. For me, it's much easier to function as an individual without doing what some say is the 'thing' to do. I can look at myself and say, 'Hey, here I am, myself, alone — and I can get along without doing what they are doing.' I can sit back and feel that I'm the individual. I'm the one who is going to make it. I'm one up on everyone else."

His attitude on the court or on the field mirrors that attitude.

With a flare for the clutch play, the big move at a critical juncture, Kertel is a three-sport athlete for the Knights. Football, basketball and baseball are his primary concerns during the regular school year, with football being probably his best sport.

Half Moon Bay Gets By Crestmoor Falcons, 28-12

By PETE BARSOCCHINI

It was almost too good to be true.

The Crestmoor Falcons, never known for their football prowess, had opened their practice season last week with a resounding win over Terra Nova and they had visions of beating Half Moon Bay this week to win two consecutive games for the first time in Falcon history.

But the Cougars spoiled everything by soundly thrashing Crestmoor, 28-12, on the Half Moon Bay field Friday.

The Cougars are a young and inexperienced team heavily laden with junior and sophomore players, but their lack of grid maturity simply was not in evidence Friday as they outplayed the Falcons in every aspect of the game.

It was HMB's first practice game and head coach Jerry Murphy was quite happy with the results. "I'm really pleased with the game," he stated. "We have mostly juniors on the team but we played very well," Murphy added.

Crestmoor opened the scoring in the game by going 66 yards in seven plays late in the first quarter. QB Jim Jarvis hit end Bob School with a 13-yard pass for the tally. The Cougars came back the next time they had the ball to score after a 65-yard drive on a one-yard plunge by Frank Reyes. HMB tallied once more in the second period to lead at the half, 14-6.

The Falcons fumbled the opening kickoff of the second half and the Cougars recovered deep in Crestmoor territory. Six plays later Reyes tossed a pass to halfback Jeff Yerian and that put HMB out of reach.

The Falcons got their final score a few minutes later when defensive back Kevin Ruane intercepted a pass and shot down the right sidelines for a 44-yard TD. Half Moon Bay scored once again also early in the final period when QB Reyes plunged over from the one to finish mat' ters.

Crestmoor was hurt badly by long penalties in key situations, an affliction that has always troubled them over the years. The Cougars made very few serious errors and were quick to capitalize on Falcon mistakes.

Capuchino Outscores El Camino

By CHRIS STAVE

Capuchino coach Vince Marchi thought his title-favorite Mustangs might have some weaknesses, but after his charges blanked El Camino 16-0 in yesterday afternoon's practice game at the 'Tang field, he admitted that he was pleased.

The down linemen had been the question mark for the Mustangs — they were small and no one knew if they could open holes on the attack or close them on defense.

They did both with equal success, springing Cap ball carriers for 196 yards while holding Colt runners to 59.

"They are small," Marchi said, "and we had been worried that they wouldn't hold up, but they are also very quick. They did very well. We were worried that they might not hold up on pass blocking, and that's still a weakness."

A slight weakness. Cap quarterback Keith Hernandez did complete eight of 14 for 154 yards, including a 40-yard touchdown bomb to Scott Strathen.

Although the Mustangs completely dominated the game, getting 21 first downs to the Colts' seven and outgaining them 350-93, there were only two Cap touchdowns, both in the second quarter. Several promising drives ended badly.

"We are too sloppy," Marchi said. "We should have scored more than 16 points. Fumbles, penalties, good drives suddenly stopping with third down and twenty situations. We're going to have to work on that."

seven imes and lost it six. Jeff could only lose three of three.

"I certainly didn't expect we would make as many mistakes as we did," Williams admitted. "Those must be corrected soon, naturally. But I think we might be a better offensive team than I first thought. And we found a couple solid football palyers."

No question there at all. Fullback Kevin O'Donnell is as good as any other back on the Peninsula. The powerful Bearcat back scored on runs of 69, 20 and 19 yards as he ran for 199 yards in just 22 carries.

Quarterback Robert Gomes daintily threw seven completions in just 10 tries for 141 yards mostly to end Tucker Hiatt, a glue-fingered receiver who snatched four passes for 104 yards and two touchdowns. That trio was worth the price of admission alone.

Hiatt's scores came from 22 and 37 yards out while the other SM tally was on an 80-yard fumble recovery by defensive back Dave Lewis.

Jefferson showed moments of adequate ability but key mistakes, the red and white handkerchiefs, from the junior-dominated squad proved fatal in the nearly three-hour confrontation. Halfback Frank Tracy popped for the Indians first score from the five and managed the second TD just into the final period on a three-yard plunge. Gary Lindsey snagged a Chinto Fonseca pass from the 10 for the final Indian tally.

LE PACINI Sportscripts

league catcher." He says that many of Dietz's defensive statistical failures can be traced to inexperienced pitching, ie, crossing Dietz up, not throwing the pitch he called for.

"Sure, like all catchers, there is certain pitching he has trouble with. But I can't fault Dick in any way. He's driven in three times as many runs as he's let in."

Infield: There is no need to discuss first base. Second base is another thing.

"With this new bogus turf, the ball gets to the infielders so quick that balls that they ordinarily would have reached are going by them. In fact, at times the ball picks up speed after it hits the turf. "So you have to think, I have to get someone, or more than one, who can move around second base with greater speed. There's no substitute for the fella who can, with that extra burst of speed, get to a ball and at least knock it down and keep it from the outfield.

"So if you have a man on second with two outs and he only gets to third because you've kept the ball on the infield, you at least temporarily save the run, give the pitcher another chance. I always say to the infielders, I love to see you on the ground knocking the ball down."

Fox makes no bones about Ron Hunt's future for the Giants at second base. It doesn't exist.

"I think I've finally gotten to Ron. I think that because of the fast turf, and because he's at a stage now where his lateral movement is very limited, that he should learn to play third base, because I think it would put 3-5 years on his career. He is an outstanding offensive ball player, that is his greatest asset, and that's how he can help us most."

Tito Fuentes and Bobby Heise and Don Mason aren't mentioned specifically, but you have the feeling that they will be in a dog fight for second next spring.

Neither is Hal Lanier mentioned specifically, but he'll apparently be at shortstop until he proves he can't play it defensively or a phenom comes along, because Fox sees down-the-middle defense as the backbone of any club and says that when you have an offensive line-up like the Giants do, you can afford to go along with .210 hitters up the middle.

THIRD BASE INTRIGUES Fox. Jimmy Hart, who appears to be hitting in his old fashion, will be available, as will Hunt, if he decides to swallow his pride and make the position switch in earnest. And then there is Al Gallagher.

Gallagher, the gutsy-hustle, dirty-belly infielder who keeps those balls in the infield, is apparently cut from the same pattern as Fox. They're both tough, smart Irishmen from similar environments, Charley from the East Coast's tough 'Jersey, Al from the West Coast's tough San Francisco Mission district.

But isn't Charley afraid of a spring training talent traffic jam at third base?

"I always like traffic jams," he replies, his Irish eyes smiling, "when I have players of those capabilities. Sooner or later, one of them is going to win the job, one of the other two will be good to have around, and the third will be good for trading."

Outfield: It is here that Fox's Irish eyes not only smile but dance.

"We already have a fine outfield with Henderson, Bonds, and the greatest center fielder that ever walked on a field. Next year, we'll be even stronger with — unless they unexpectedly fall flat on their faces — George Foster and Bernie Williams. That will give us five outstanding outfielders, and any time Mays needs a rest, we'll be able to replace him with a fella who will be capable of playing regularly on pretty near any other big league club."

And Fox hastily adds that the Giants have one of the best utility men in the league in Frank Johnson, who can capably play any outfield position, third or first base, and who hits in the clutch as a pinch-hitter.

As we said at the beginning of this column, Fox doesn't believe in making baseball dealings mystic. He knows that it's obvious the Giants are going to have to make some trades, because, "We have an over-abundance at certain positions. We're going to have seven good big league outfielders, for instance, and while I don't say we'll trade any of them for sure, if we get to the stage where possibly we can pick up a veteran pitcher, a good reliever, a good pinch-hitter, well, you can figure one of them has to go."

Next week: More of Charley Fox on the un-mystic game of baseball.

NELL NORTON

Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

Dear me, today's column has to start off with a correction of two of last week's recipes. Both recipes are delicious and I want to be sure you good cooks have the correct versions, for they are well worth the making.

SPANISH STEAK WITH SOUR CREAM SAUCE

3 pounds round steak, cut three-fourths inches thick.
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup regular all-purpose flour
2 Tablespoons butter
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
½ cup chopped green pepper
1-3 cup chopped onion
1 Tablespoon regular all-purpose flour
1 cup dairy sour cream at room temperature

Cut the three pounds round steak into serving pieces; sprinkle with the two teaspoons salt and eighth teaspoon pepper. Coat the meat with the flour and score with a sharp knife. Coat again with flour.

In skillet melt the two talblespoons butter; brown the meat slowly on all sides.

Combine the pound can tomatoes with the half cup chopped green pepper and third cup chopped onion; pour over meat.

Cover and simmer over low heat 2-2½ hours until meat is fork-tender. Transfer meat to warm platter. Into liquid in skillet blend the one tablespoon flour; cook stirring constantly, until thickened (about 5 minutes).

Remove from heat and stir in the cup sour cream. Serve immediately over Spanish Steak. Serves 8.

BUTTERSCOTCH OATMEAL COOKIES

½ cup margarine
1 pkg. butterscotch pudding mix
1 egg, beaten
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon cream of tarter
½ teaspoon soda
¼ cup sugar
1 cup oatmeal
¼ cup chopped nuts

Cream the half cup margarine, blend in the pudding mix. Add the one egg. Sift together the cup flour, half teaspoon each cream of tarter, soda and fourth cup sugar. Add to creamed mixture and mix well. Add the one cup oatmeal and fourth cup chopped nuts. Roll into small balls and place on ungreased cookie sheet. Flatten with moistened fork.

Bake in 350-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 3 dozen.

JUST RECENTLY a good cook, Mrs. Barbara Teijeiro of South San Francisco requested a recipe that was featured in Sugar 'n' Spice earlier this year. It's such a terrific casserole dish that I'm "more" than delighted to repeat the recipe for MORE.

MORE

1 pound ground beef
1 clove garlic, minced
1 medium onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
2 Tbsp. oil
1 can peas (303)
1 can whole kernel corn (303)
1 can sliced ripe olives, small can
1 can tomatoes (303)
½ pound uncooked elbow macaroni
salt and pepper to taste
1 cup grated cheddar cheese
1 large can mushroom spaghetti sauce (about 14 ounces)

(Bake 350-degree oven 45 minutes).

Brown the pound ground beef and set aside. Heat the two tablespoons oil in skillet, add the minced garlic, chopped onion and green pepper. Cook until tender.

Cook the half pound macaroni and drain. Add the cooked macaroni, the can of corn, peas, tomatoes and sliced ripe olives plus the browned meat to the cooked vegetables. Salt and pepper to taste. Simmer about 10 minutes.

Lightly grease a two-quart casserole. Place a layer of meat and macaroni mixture then grated cheese, repeat layers. Cover and bake in 350-degree oven for one-half hour. Remove, pour the can spaghetti sauce over top. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes more or until bubbly hot.

Serves 8 generously.

DOLORES' MORE

1 12-ounce package noodles
1 large onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 Tablespoons olive oil.
1 large can tomatoes (2½ size)
1 can cream style corn (303)
4 cans chicken tamales (7½ oz. size)
1 can sliced black olives
1½ Tablespoons chili powder (add more or less depending on your taste buds)
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
Butter

(Bake 350-degree oven 30 to 45 minutes).

Cook and drain the package noodles. Saute the onion and minced garlic in the two tablespoons olive oil until transparent.

In a large saucepan combine the onion, garlic and oil, the can tomatoes, corn, four cans chicken tamales (break up the tamales before adding) and the can of ripe sliced olives. Stir the one and one-half tablespoons chili powder in a little water and add to mixture. Sprinkle in the two teaspoons salt and stir well.

Add the noodles and cook slowly for 15 minutes. Add the two beaten eggs and pour into prepared dishes.

New Schedules At Bruno Church

New service and activities schedules are being initiated at Calvary Community Church, 270 West San Bruno Avenue, San Bruno, beginning Sunday.

Sunday activities will begin with a 9 a.m. discussion and study group for single adults and young married couples at the Bonanza Restaurant, South San Francisco. Church school will begin at 9:30 a.m. Included Christian education are graded courses and classes for all age groups.

The worship service convenes at 10:45 a.m., with the evening worship service starting at 6. The sanctuary choir offers music in both Sunday services.

Child care is offered in the church nursery during services for infants to age 3. During the morning worship service, graded children's worship programs are provided (ages 4-9) with opportunities for participation in singing, filmstrips, and stories.

Wednesday evening study groups include the School of the Bible at 8 p.m. and a youth rap session (high school youth) at 7:30 p.m. Adult prayer begins at 7:30 p.m. Children's chorus meets at 8 p.m. for grades 2-6. Nursery care is provided.

Tuesday evening the sanctuary choir rehearses at 7 with Royal Rangers (boys club) and Missionettes (girls club) meeting at the same time.

The teen chorale meets at 9 p.m.

Roger A. Sitcler and Mark A. Thallander have recently accepted staff positions at Calvary Community.

Sitcler, the new minister of youth, was born and raised in Fort Wayne, Ind. Sitcler was active in various church activities and Youth for Christ organizations. While attending Central Bible College in Springfield, Missouri, he was on the staff of Springfield Youth for Christ. He also studied at the Indiana Institute of Technology.

While in Springfield, Sitcler met his wife, the former Gayle Rogers of Sunnyvale, who was then a member of the ABC radio network broadcast choir, "Revivaltime."

Along with his responsibilities as minister of youth, Sitcler is the director of Community Youth Rallies. The rallies, held bi-monthly, include rock groups and a special youth speaker, and draw hundreds of teenagers.

Thallander, minister of music, lived in Stockton most of his life. Following his graduation, he was offered the position of pianist for the ABC network broadcast, "Revivaltime." Originating in Springfield, Mo., the broadcast is produced weekly. While studying at Evangel College and Central Bible College in Springfield, Thallander traveled with the "Revivaltime" choir on six extended tours in the United States, Canada, and the Bahamas, accompanying the choir in church and high school concerts, and special appearances in federal penitentiaries and youth rallies.

Appearing on radio and television frequently, Thallander most recently performed on the Fabian Rozelle Show originating in Columbus, Georgia.

Along with his responsibilities and private music lessons at Calvary Community Church, Thallander will continue his education in San Francisco.

Westsiders To Attend Conference

Friday evening at Camp Koinonia near Watsonville, the Annual Northern California Baptist Conference Family Camp will be held. The camp will continue through October 3.

A number of familes from Westside Baptist will be in attendance. "If You Believe" is the sermon topic chosen by Pastor David Donnelly for the October 4, 10:55 a.m., worship hour message.

Following the message, the ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed. At this service, there will be special music. Nursery facilities are provided throughout Sunday morning, and also a nursery for toddlers.

At 9:45 each Sunday morning, there are 15 Sunday School classes meeting. At Westside Baptist, Christian Education is stressed for the entire family.

A new class for young marrieds is being taught by Pastor Donnelly. Three Conference Youth Fellowship groups meet at 6 p.m., Sunday. They are the Junior Astronauts, Junior High and Senior High CYF.

At this hour Pastor Donnelly is conducting a church membership class for new members, or those interested to know what the church teaches.

"An Honest Confession" is the sermon topic for the 7 p.m. Family Fellowship Gospel Hour. The ordinance of Baptism will be observed, and several people will be baptized by immersion. At the close of the service, the right hand of church fellowship will be extended to new members.

Westside Baptsit Church is located at 390 Inverness Drive, (Fairmont) Pacifica, and is affiliated with the Baptist General Conference.

D.C. Rosh Hashonah Observance

Members of Congregation B'nai Israel along with Jews throughout the world will observe Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year, with prayers rather than festivities beginning tonight and continuing through October 1 and 2.

A limited number of seats are still available to those wishing to worship at this Congregation.

On Sunday, a memorial service will be held at Eternal Home Cemetery in Colma at 10:30 a.m. Yom Kippur, the most holy day in the Jewish calendar, will be observed with prayers and fasting from sundown October 9 to sundown October 10.

A Yom Kippur Dance will conclude the observance of the High Holy Days on October 10 at 9 p.m.

The festivities will be held at the Congregation's social hall at 2159 Junipero Serra Boulevard in Daly City.

Donation is $3.50 per person, and reservations may be made by calling the temple office.

Fall Season Activities

First Lutheran Church has started the fall season with a multitude of activities, according to the Rev. Trenton R. Ferro of South San Francisco.

Confirmation instruction classes have begun. Class meets every Thursday from 4 to 7 p.m. with time out for the dinner hour. Meals are prepared by the parents who do this in rotation.

A new midweek Bible Study course has begun on the book "Learning to Use Your Bible" by Oscar Feucht.

Nursery care for preschoolers is available at a nominal fee. The discussions are from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. led by the Rev. Ferro every Thursday morning in the church transcept.

SSF Pastors Back Damien House Plan

The South San Francisco Ministerial Association, at its September meeting, adopted the following resolution, placing their support behind the Damien House project:

"We, the South San Francisco Ministerial Association, go on record as supporting the idea of a Drop-In Center, such as Damien House, and we shall lend what support we can to establishing a facility, and if such a faculity is established, we shall continue our interest in the program that it might represent a lasting and meaningful service to our community."

Officers for the South San Francisco Ministerial Association for 1970-71 include Rev. Bill G. Willms, Chairman (Pastor of Our Redeemer's Lutheran Church), Fr. William Knapp, Vice Chairman (Pastor of Mater Dolorosa Catholic Church), and the Rev. Kenneth Glenn (Pastor of First Southern Baptist Church).

Speaking Class At S.S.F. High

Bill Simonson again is teaching public speaking at South San Francisco High School as part of the adult education program there.

Simonson said the class will be held each Tuesday, starting at 7 p.m., in room B4.

The course, in addition to featuring "a lot of practice in speaking," also will include for the first time basic radio and television techniques, Simonson declared.

BALMY SUMMER-LIKE DAYS that are driving us a bit balmy. To the west lies the coastside city of Pacifica with its relatively new city manager; to the east lies Brisbane with its new city manager, to the south lies South San Francisco and San Bruno with their new city managers. Here in Daly City the non-conforming city council continues to keep David Rowe in office. Rowe is kinda new to the CM post but not to the city. And he got his job under different circumstances (predecessor Ed Frank retired, wasn't fired).

IF IT WASN'T SO SERIOUS it would be funny. That San Francisco Airport Access Project Board of Control that is overseeing the consumption of some $550,000 to study ways and means of getting to the airport might try using a steamroller instead of a BARTD-type train. For our money the five-member Board hasn't come up with anything new in the form of routing, entry, et al.

Two members of the Board, Daly City councilman Frank Pacelli and San Mateo County supervisor Jim Fitzgerald, rocked the boat at the fourth joint meeting recently when they insisted engineers present some new ideas on how to get people back and forth to the airport.

Half a million bucks is a lotta loot for a rehash of the disaster plan the West Bay Rapid Transit Authority came up with last year. You know, the plan county voters shot full of holes.

THE SHADOW KNEW that Governor Reagan was nursing a nasty flubug during his Daly City stopover. In the best tradition of the theater, however, the show went on. Good show, guv.

SHED A TEAR for those two historic Daly City landmarks that stand in the way of progress. Many a soul will toast their passing. We're talking about Duffy's and Shannon's taverns at the top of Mission Street. Mayor Bud Lycett hinted (actually he came right out and said it) that both refueling stations will fall by the wayside when construction starts on Knowles Avenue. Cost of the improvement project, to be completed about August 1972, is $250,000.

SPEAKING OF LYCETT — The Good Mayor let it out at a recent meet of the Mission Merchants' Association that he had talked to no less than 10 developers about re-developing Mission Street. So far no takers.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF DALY CITY is scouting a branch office in San Bruno at the corner of San Bruno and Huntington streets, site of an old creamery. They've already made application with the government.

DALY CITY POLICE will adopt a "no nonsense" policy again this Halloween. That means kiddies — large and small — you may get a Mace in the face if you decide to drift out of the mainstream of activities and cause trouble. Plenty of good dances around town for all, so there won't be any excuses for acting like irresponsible ne'er-do-wells. And remember parents, newly adopted AB1666 ups your financial responsibilities for the little darlings from $500 to $1000.

THE DALY CITY RECREATION DEPT. is looking for adult volunteers to help at the dances on Halloween. How 'bout narrowing that communications gap a little and donating some time to the kids.

WHY IS IT SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO seems to get into this column more each week? Perhaps because the South City council is making more news, we answer. That's right, folks, they've got us talking to ourselves over recent happenings:

CASE ONE: The city was offered a "free" analysis of its bonding potential for an estimated $20 million in capital improvements and turned it down flat! But when talks turned to a flood study of Colma Creek they okehed it without a blink or knowing how much it will cost, when it will be done, etc., etc. If our muddled memory serves, the Army Corp of Engineers has been conducting related studies on Colma Creek (that's the creek some stores in Colma use as a toilet drainpipe) for several years.

CASE TWO: But don't think South City's controlling troika automatically okeh everything. Never happen. A recent request to recognize in principle a proposed shoreline regional park (already on the city's master plan) ignored the issue for the time being. Decisions, decisions.

CASE THREE: Some folks looking into the youth hiring practices employed in South City this past summer. Usually needy youth are hired for summer jobs, but rumor has it quite a few kids from rather well off families grabbed the jobs this year. More later.

HEARD THAT JUDGE Frank Blum's attorney-to-be son Frank Blum Jr. will join the law firm of Hupf, Etcheverry & Coan.

DALY CITY PEOPLE SHIFT — Finance Director John B. Massen has been appointed deputy city treasurer replacing Marion Laskey who resigned the post three weeks ago. That's really not much of a story.

What caused the resignation, according to sources close to City Hall, is the story. Miss Laskey was taking full responsibility for all city treasurer activities in the absence of City Treasurer Joseph Lewkowitz without additional compensation.

Mr. Lewkowitz has been increasingly busy at his service station in recent months and has spent less and less time at City Hall — often as little as two hours per week. In other words, Miss Laskey was doing the job and NOT getting the $400 monthly paid to the City Treasurer.

How Pacifica Looks To New Planner

Lester H. Clark, Pacifica's 36-year-old Community Development director, digressed recently in refreshing terms about people-to-government communication.

"Planning is not necessarily what I say it should be, but an interpretation of what the people want," the bespectacled planning expert said.

Moving to Pacifica several weeks ago from Kansas, his first impressions of the scenic coastal community was varied, yet was heavily sprinkled with the same concern for citizen involvement in planning.

He was pleased, he said, with the wide participation of residents in the development of the city's master plan.

Among his first activities was a review of Pacifica's 701 plan.

"One thing I thought good was the fact there was so much citizen participation in the plan." A number of committees worked with the city, and he hopes the involvement by residents will continue.

Clark knows his 701 plans, is aware of the community participation one usually can expect to find, particularly since they can be somewhat technical.

He spent two years with the State of Kansas Department of Economic Development, a position that required he work with a number of communities on development of their comprehensive planning programs.

Clark doesn't go out into the community to do a lot of talking, but he does attend numerous meetings, offering to assist on the city's behalf in anyway he can, and listening.

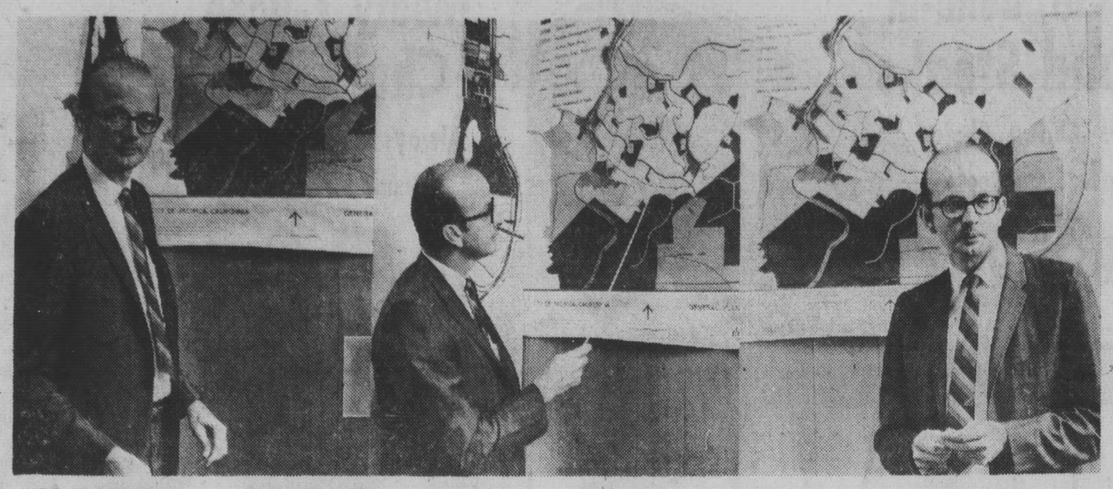
This way, he explains, "I hope to understand what the people want," then provide as much comment and suggestion as possible, "interpreting what they want."

"This is the key to both planning and development," Clark advanced. "It is their city . . . they have to recognize it is their city, and I should try to help them in developing it."

The citizens, he remarked, must tell the city "what they like; don't like" and the planners must determine how acceptable the planning program really is to the city's residents.

He admittedly has a few things going for him—the same ones that fresh-aired Pacifica has that is making it a fast-growing bedroom community.

"We have a lot of things here to work with that must be unique to the area," Clark explained, including obviously the "very attractive shoreline" and the natural barrier that the hills to the east provide. —W.E.T.



"PLANNING IS . . . What The People . . . Want" Lester Clark explains key points of Pacifica's planning development program. "We have a lot of things here to work with," he says, reminding that planning is "an interpretation of what the people want." (Starr Photos)

Our Opinion

A Lack Of Stability?

Two of the San Mateo County's cities have made a change in city managers, and a third is embroiled in controversy over choice of a new manager, all within the compass of the present 30 days.

Without commenting on the merits of these several actions, it is fair to observe that there seems to be some lack of stability, locally, in the profession of city management. Some city managers in the county have done their jobs so well that retention of their positions appears to be beyond question. Some others must inevitably feel uneasy at the rate of turnover in these very difficult jobs.

Since good city managers are both hard to find and are valuable to the cities they serve, the citizens of each of the cities need to know where and why their problems lie.

In simple terms, city managers are hired essentially for their administrative talents and their general knowledge of municipal affairs and practices. Ideally, a city manager's job is actual "management"; on the administrative level at the direction of a city council or commission which functions at the policy-making level.

In chartered cities this division of duties is set forth in the charter and provision is made to protect the manager against interference with the duties assigned by the charter and the policies set forth by the charter. The city manager serves at the pleasure of the council, but it usually takes a four-to-one vote, or the equivalent, to summarily remove him.

In the unchartered cities the course of a city manager is by no means as explicit. Inl larger unchartered cities his position is usually effected by ordinance and the ordinance may spell out the division of duties ordinarily specified by a charter. But this is not necessarily true. In smaller cities councils are often reluctant to enact an ordinance that will specifically limit their own powers. In either case the city manager can find his position embarrassing.

From another view, an astute city manager who is affably responsible to the city council in political considerations can sometimes solidify his job because he has all of the councilmen under obligation. This can be good or bad depending upon his honesty and ability.

But, if he is forced to political expediency his value to the citizenry is likely to suffer, along with his value as an administrator.

Wherever, and whenever, the question of having a competent city manager arises the citizens are well advised to investigate thoroughly. City councils, directly responsive to the voters, are generally worthy of the trust imposed in them, but such trust is in direct ratio to their performance and their efficiency in conducting city business. Since the latter determines tax bills and is the province of a city manager it is in the interest of the citizenry to be satisfied that the council has picked the right man.

The price of good local government, like that of liberty, is eternal vigilance.

Another JC Chance?

There is not a household or a business in San Mateo County that could function or operate at current levels on the same income rate it had in 1937—33 years ago.

Yet, this is the impossible task that voters in the San Mateo Junior College District last week have set for the trustees and administrators of the district. The defeat of a permissive tax increase measure effects a reversion to the district's 1937 tax rate limitation of 35 cents per hundred dollars assessed valuation.

At a minimum, this reduces operating funds by four million dollars and calls for a cutback of at least 25 per cent in expenditures. This will mean turning away thousands of students with corresponding cuts in faculty and staff.

At the election last week, also, the voters defeated a $2.7 bond issue measure which had been proposed in order to reach completion of the Canada and Skyline Colleges together with added facilities at the San Mateo campus. Failure of the bond issue also brings the loss of $2.3 millions in federal and state matching funds which could have been obtained for these same purposes.

The margins by which the college measures were beaten were decisive and indicate strong feelings by the electors. These feelings may have been based on frustration with higher tax bills, on dissatisfaction with the nationwide conduct of some college students, or upon belief that the special election proceedings were wasteful.

Nothing is to be gained now by speculating on the reasons for the adverse voting. But in the interests of fairness and justice those who voted "No" need to realize that they have dealt a highly disabling blow to local progress in higher education and to their very own colleges — institutions very necessary to the young people of the county. Whatever the reasons for the "No" votes, they appear to have been cast without full knowledge of the dire result they would bring about.

There is still time to make amends. The college trustees should explore every avenue for an economical resubmission of both measures. Having once expressed their displeasure, the voters may very well have a change of heart when they realize how seriously they have damaged the college system they have fostered, built and supported for years with just pride.

The progress of the district, of this county and its cities, depends strongly on the best education for its young people. The obligation of every citizen is unmistakable. Those who have gone before us never shirked providing education for us. In good faith we must do as much for the citizens of tomorrow and the more distant future.

Another chance to make good is imperative.

The Chief's Corner

'I Was Stopped Last Night'

"I was stopped by an officer last night for speeding and felt like I was treated like a criminal. The Officer told me to stay in my car, kept shining his flashlight in the car, and then when a second Officer came along he stood by the right side of my car shining his light into the inside like he was looking for something."

The Honorable Brooks Ice, Judge of the Municipal Court, recently stated, "One out of ten people in the United States are mentally defective." Using this as a base figure and considering the fact that of the 86 Officers killed in the line of duty in 1969, 57 of them were on car patrol duty, it would appear to make sense to be careful when confronting a motorist.

THE OFFICER who stopped you had no idea who you were, what you may have done in the past other than commit a traffic infraction, or whether you were one of those mentally defective people Judge Ice referred to. The Officer is instructed to use utmost caution when contacting a motorist, told exactly how to approach a vehicle, where to stand, what to look for, and how to utilize his equipment.

The Officer who stopped you and the Officer who assisted him were shining their flashlights in your vehicle to be sure no weapons were handy for your use. They had asked you to remain in your vehicle both as means of protecting you from passing traffic, and to make it more difficult for you to use a weapon if you had one.

The sitting position makes use of any type weapon extremely difficult. Keeping you in your vehicle also keeps you away from the Officer. In 1969 thirteen Officers were killed when their weapons were seized and used against them.

The Working Mother

SAMUEL CHANDLER

Daly City Librarian

In 1940, one mother in 10 worked; the new 1970 census is expected to show that almost 5 in 10 are working

While precise figures are impossible to obtain it looks as though there are around five million children under six years old with working mothers. To look after this large number of children there are 640,000 day care centers. That is barely enough to care for from three to fifteen percent of the children of working mothers. The rest are subject to "arrangements" with neighbors or relations or are just left alone.

SOME YEARS AGO THE Medical and Health and Research Association of New York City did a study of unlicensed homes, dealing with 25,000 of the city's children, half of them under six years old. The study found babies left completely unattended all day. Many were left with people who were too sick to hold a "regular" job. Even under good circumstances, the report showed, the day's schedule for the cildren was apt to be breakfast, TV, lunch, a nap and more TV.

The condition of children of working mothers is so alarming Rep. Shirley Chisholm called for legislation to correct what she calls "custodial parking lots."

With this in mind one Joseph Featherstone visited a number of ordinary day care facilities in Washington D. C. What he saw is reported in an article entitled, "Kentucky Fried Children," in September's issue of New Republic. What he saw was children huddled together under the care of adults who although reasonably pleasant, but totally incapable of thinking of things for themselves and the children to do. The children are universally bored to stupefaction. They have the inert look of children in the later years of elementary school.

FEATHERSTONE learned that the money that parents can afford for day care is not sufficient to allow the sitter to provide toys, playgrounds, or even adequate food. He learned that organizations that franchise day care centers have done little to improve the conditions.

"At best, they provide pleasant, expensive baby-sitting," he says.

Featherstone did not visit children who are left alone or with neighbors, yet what he saw in the licensed homes led him to a question for which there is no answer presently. What constitutes good standards of day care and how do we formulate standards and enforce them?

Surely, his article opens the door to a horrible problem that cries for a solution.

Burden Of Cause-ism

JAMES HALLEY

Post-Times Columnist

The world suffers under the burden of a new ism. It is cause-ism, a doctrine that holds any action as legitimate providing a sufficient underlying provocation exists.

Examples abound in the United States. Bombing a building is justified on the ground of either the Vietnam war or of oppression. The same goes for burning houses, rioting in the streets, or other acts of senseless destructiveness and violence. Surprisingly, much of the rhetoric of justification has come from governmental or institutional leaders.

In a reverse twist, last week Spiro Agnew justified hard-hat clashes with students as not premeditated and as having been caused by "the rage of people who worked to build this country".

Recently, Russia indulged in the art. Plane hijackings have been a real problem in Russia and any Russian caught hijacking faces the death penalty for treason. Nonetheless, when given the choice of standing against hijacking or indulging in cause-ism, Russia went strongly for the underlying cause theory. The propaganda line was as follows:

"Progressive world public opinion, while condemning these extremist acts, of course, cannot close its eyes to the reasons which gave birth to them. They are the reaction, although in an extreme form, to the aggressive, anti-Arab policy which the Israeli leadership and its protectors have carried out".

All of this, especially as it applies within the United States, leads to a consideration of law and order. If one defines law as the administration of justice through the rule of law, it is possible for a nation to have order without law, and also law without order.

One can easily imagine a society with order, but with no law as we know it. Nazi Germany enjoyed order; modern Russia enjoys order. Correlatively, one can envision a nation of laws, but no order. We are dangerously close to this circumstance today.

Considered in this manner, the call for law and order makes sense, and contains its own balance. But the combination is not likely to flourish in an atmosphere of justification and cause-ism. This practice disrupts order and injures justice.

Past criminal acts can, at least in the present volume, be met by our system of justice. The real problem with cause-ism is that it promotes future and continuing violent and illegal acts. Cause-ism finds some of our most educated and most civilized citizens unwittingly encouraging their less informed fellows to a state of violence.

There is no justification for violent and destructive acts by blacks, hard-hats, students, or any other persons, excepting only the old rules of law respecting immediate danger and immediate provocation. If Russia wants to have her own hangups about hijacking, that's her own business, but Americans, particularly those in high places in this nation, should stop playing the game.

Pacifica's Park, Beach and Recreation Department's fall-winter recreation guide is to be distributed this week.

Personal contact is the main thrust of John Sloane's campaign for the vacent Jefferson Union High School District trustee seat vacated by Elio Fontana.

Pacifica's fall adult baseball league managers will meet at 7 p.m. October 6 in the city hall conference room.

Dr. John Connolly, candidate for the Jefferson High School Board of Trustees, has announced that Gerald H. Del Fino, president of the Hillside Homeowners' Improvement Association, is the general chairman of his campaign.

Environment Controls For Bruno Seen

San Bruno Vice Mayor and Councilman, Ted Long, and chairman of the Environmental Control Study Committee today announced the second hearing in a series of eight concerning San Bruno and its environment will be held at 7:30 in the City Hall Council Chambers on Wednesday.

The hearing will be chaired by Kevin Ryan, local attorney and member of the committee. Speakers will include representatives from BART, the Division of Highways, Greyhound Bus Company, Southern Pacific Railroad, as well as the city staff who will focus the program on San Bruno's transportation problems and particularly with reference to the extension of BART to the airport and the possibility of a downtown station to service the Northern Peninsula Area.

In addition to the testimony that will be presented by the experts, the general public is encouraged to attend and offer testimony in relation to the problem under discussion. The information is being recorded for the purpose of the preparation of a report to the San Bruno City Council with recommendations for the establishment of a permanent commission as well as immediate action programs which may be undertaken to help preserve the North County environment.

Bill Weber, chairman of the Bay Area Water Qaulity Control Board, recently told the San Bruno Environmental Control Study Committee that unless San Bruno conforms to new standards within the next 12 to 18 months, that agency will likely take drastic action. Weber, as the concluding speaker in a panel of experts who presented evidence to the San Bruno Environmental Control Study Committee on Bay pollution with particular reference to outfall sewage, concluded his presentation with a compliment to the committee for the taking of the action and the holding of the hearings and with an optimist note that would encourage San Bruno to continue to take leadership in this particular area by contacting its consultant and beginning the preparation of a long-range plan which will lead ultimately to full tertiary treatment of sewage. While Weber stated that this is ultimately probably a $3,000,000 to $3,500,000 project, the city can, through intelligant planning, begin to lay the groundwork which will allow this to take place over the next few years and at the same time remain in compliance with the Regional Water Quality Control Board's recent strengthened regulations.

Access Route For Airport In A Rut?

San Francisco Airport Access Project engineers appear to be stuck with routing a proposed transit system from Daly City to the airport over the same ground that has been covered before.

Primarily due to the topography of the Peninsula, and the availability of property, the basic route still follows the Southern Pacific tracks from Daly City for a short distance, passes over some private property and hooks up with the "Old" line 40 trolley right-of-way in Colma.

Where this line approaches the immediate neighborhood of the airport is where the only sticky decision must be made, engineering reports on Friday offered to the transit study Board of Control indicate.

Engineers must decide whether to recommend a subway system at the northwest corner of the airport and pass by the United Airlines maintenance building into the new terminal, or swing into the new terminal on an elevated track from the San Bruno-Millbrae area.

The latter would carry trains into an upper platform and would necessitate installing additional support pillars in the terminal building at a cost of some $1 million.

The engineering report still has not ruled out a shuttle system between the BARTD-like main line into the airport complex from San Bruno, although several previous studies showed the idea is impractical.

The subway was never given much serious thought after the cost of tunneling through the muck was tallied up.

All but two members of the five-member board entrusted with overseeing the study appeared to accept the report — and its determination to push through the route using new color coding on very old ideas.

The two members — San Mateo County Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald and Daly City councilman Frank Pacelli — said they did not want to be nailed down on any routing plans until more detailed reports were handed in.

Pacelli said after the meeting that he felt the engineers might perhaps come up with some new ideas on the extension.

"We've heard these reports before. They're nothing new. I would like to know if perhaps there wasn't a whole new way to get into the airport," Pacelli said.

Guidelines For SMJC Sought

"Trustees are the key agency here," San Mateo Junior College District Chancellor Clifford Erickson pointed out in pondering what he called "significant questions" that surround the recent defeat of the district's growth and operational fund measures at the polls.

Erickson, urging the district's Board of Trustees to utilize all the informational sources at their command, suggested that solutions are needed to a number of problems immediately on the surface.

Guidelines

—What general guidelines, he poses, should be used in reducing programs, staff and enrollments for 1971, and beyond to fit budgets to available resources?

—Should the budget cuts be according to major function?

(For example, should all evening education be eliminated and other functions preserved at near normal operation or should all functions be cut back giving fewer students opportunities to complete present curricula?)

—Should program cuts be made according to curriculum?

—How can needed cuts be made without risking the quality of college faculties, programs and facilities?

Another Election

—Should the voters be asked again before March 15, 1971 to consider an increase in the authorized tax limit for operations?

—Should the bond proposition be dropped after three failures?

Elio Fontana, a trustee from Daly City, had a number of recommendations, some perhaps "out of order," others possibly not legally permissable.

They included the channelization of override tax moneys into operation, meetings with legislators on the possibility of getting the current taxation level-re-instituted, development of a permissive tax rate for operations, limitations on adult education.

Revert to '35 Level

Fontana emphasized that college education for many members of the community is going to have to come from "this insitution."

He said "not many people realize," the district will have to revert to a 1935 financing level.

Faculty and student involvement also came out this week as necessary to the ultimate success of any district move to gain funding.

Teacher organizations already have pledged their desire to become involved.

A Canada School student, rapping what seemed to be a board movement toward sublety in its approach to reach the public, suggested instead a need to "put a little scare into them."

A faculty member was even more direct. A "selling job" must be done, he said, adding:

"Scare hell out of them!"

Solicitation

The schools must actively solicite the support of the community, as well as "do a lot of reshaping or our whole educational approach," he said.

This same instructor through "parents either gave away control, or teachers took it, and now they don't know what to do with it."

Board President Robert Tarver told Chancellor Erickson:

"God speed. It is in your hands."

Dog Control Sought By D.C. School

Cooperation of the community in control of dogs has been sought by trustees of the Jefferson Elementary School District in an effort to keep schoolgrounds free of animal waste.

Supt. Frank Greenwood had been directed to meet with City Mgr. David Rowe in an attempt to gain municipal insight into the problem.

Trustees have been hopeful that signs could be erected to spell out the limitations of schoolground use.

Greenwood said Rowe was satisfied that a municipal ordinance "prohibits dog owners from utilizing public property for the disposal of animal waste."

Specifically, the ordinance section provides:

"No person shall permit any animal to trespass on property, public or private, so as to damage or destroy any property or thing of value. Such trespassing is a nuisance, and any animal so doing may be impounded by the poundmaster."

Posting on the playgrounds and public facilities is inadequate, Greenwood pointed out.

Colma Creek Flood Threat

South San Francisco councilmen have authorized a study to determine the potential flood threat of Colma Creek.

The decision was made after continued requests by resident Don Grimes, who said he has been flooded out of his home in the past.

Grimes, who pointed to a report by Lou Goss, director of public works, that a recent storm drain project will increase flow by 1½ per cent, contends this increase will make flooding inevitable.

is minuscule. He explained that to provide an alternate drainage system would have cost from $20,000 to $50,000.

SMJC Enrollment May Be Reduced By 10,000

By WILL THOMAS

San Mateo County's voters, in rejecting junior college financial measures, might have slain — at best, seriously crippled — one of its local community education systems.

The trustees of the San Mateo Junior College District last week began to feel the stinging impact of the September 15 defeat by voters of two measures to provide both growth and operational funds.

Meeting at Skyline College in San Bruno, the four-man, one woman Board of Trustees, heard Matteo V. Fasanaro, college business manager, point forcefully to a deficit next year of some $3.5-million.

Such a figure-in-red, Fasanaro explained, cannot result in anything less than the reductions of staff by 248 persons and of enrollment by 10,000 students.

Although Chancellor Clifford Erickson emphasized the compliations to be for trustee study for the time being, Fasanaro was firm in his belief:

"I can see no other way for the district to maintain the educational excellence that it has."

He said the figures envisioned no curtailment in the current levels of service. "It assumes the same weekly student contact," Fasanaro declared.

Originally, a deficit of $4.2 million was projected, but Fasnaro noted that an unanticipated $500,000 has been allocated by the State.

His study paper also took into accouunt, he said, that a special override tax for Adult Education would be levied, and $250,000 obtained.

It was based, too, on an $18 unit of attendance increase, as well as a 6.5 per cent boost of assessed valuation.

Not included, Fasanaro said, were lease purchase contract sums, a $600,000 reserve and district administrative costs.

Fasanaro noted that 85 per cent of district costs are for staff salaries.

While trustees and administrators were pondering the possibility of staff reductions, at least one instructor was thinking differently.

He observed near the end of the session, near midnight, that the "staff of the college is such they know they can get jobs," because there's "never a glut of good teachers," a reference to the common belief there is a nationwide teacher surplus.

And, he said, "the exodus was begun on the 16th of September."

Explaining he had "activated my file," he maintained that trustees would not have to worry about staff cuts. The problem will be "to hold them."

Chancellor Erickson, emphasizing Fasanaro's presentation was "study document" and not administrative recommendations, said he hopes "we will be spared sharp cutbacks."

He pledged to "bend every ounce of my effort" to avoid reductions.

If there is curtailment, he hopes to do it in a deliberate, orderly way. Conferences with the county district attorney's office on legal procedures already have begun, Erickson said.

Dr. Robert L. Ewigleben, the president of College of San Mateo, described college as "first and foremost a human organization" that is not made by its buildings or equipment, but by its faculty.

"Without the faculty," he warned, "You have nothing."

Once these "human resources" go the district won't have them "for a long, long time," Ewigleben emphasized, adding:

He said the board has the "responsibility to go to the people to tell them, once and for all, that they have a chance to save the colleges."

He said "survival of these colleges is at stake" and that the district must know before next June what the answer from the voting populace is to be.

Chancellor Erickson, however, has recommended, tentatively, that trustees defer consideration of another election until more research on the past election is available and until the community has had an opportunity to assess the meaning of the past election and its impact on future services of the college.

Erickson, and others present at the meeting, urged communication of the district's fiscal crisis to state and federal legislators and agencies, in hopes of securing the necessary fund increases eventually.

The chancellor dropped a number of questions, as well as comments about the election, in trustees' laps.

He was certain, for instance, that "there is in the community a greater awareness of the fiscal needs" of the district, and "an effective plan for involving citizens and college and district levels has been developed and a corps of citizens supporting the colleges is standing by to assist the district in the future."

It was disclosed that 44 of every 100 voters approved the increase in operating levy and 47 of every 100 approved the bond issue, which one trustee already has labelled as a "dead duck" and not likely to be ressurected.

The presidents and the chancellor, Erickson said will give "extraordinary review" to all appointmentments, the filling of positions vacated by resginations and the appointment of part-time personnel.

"All possible cuts in staffing will be made," he declared.

Additionally, requisitions for equipment, supplies and services will be reviewed and "only those absolutely necessary to maintain essential programs and services" will be approved, the chancellor said.

to comply with and satisfy the FCR requirement."

Hamilton noted that the only requirement of the FCC is an ambiguous "substantial amount" of local origination. "This has been interpreted by some as five hours a week," said Hamilton.

Van Dusen said he was "Not objecting to an engineering study, but added that he didn't think one was necessary.

"We will have an excellent system and additional study would accomplish nothing," said Van Dusen. "It is ready for construction; the best system that can be purchased and installed."

The city engineer also pointed out that Jerrold Electronics, the contractor, conducted a study prior to bidding on the project; that they designed the entire system, and in addition to constructing it, are using materials they manufactured.

Menkin said the bidding procedure was one of the reasons he was recommending an engineering study. He noted that three bids were submitted and two did not have proper bonding.

He said "It is just very interesting" that other firms did not offer to bid on the project.

Councilman Griffith then interjected that he was "concerned with the fact the Jerrold representative was a confidant of Mr. (Gerald) Vergeer (the former city manager) up to the time of letting the bid.

"I question whether others had an opportunity to submit an adequate bid," said Griffith, urging a review of the bidding procedure.

Menkin said he tried to keep politics out of the report. He also said he has "utmost confidence" in Van Dusen and would not object to turning the matter over to him.

Corey commented that this was a move in the right direction, but wouldn't close the "wide and deep" gap between the councilmen.

Mayor Christal, however, disagreed, saying a report may be interpreted any way a person wants to interpret it, "depending on his attitude."

He said Corey's motion to put the system in the hands of Van Dusen was "a chipping away process (at Menkin and those who appointed him), and therefore he was opposed to it. "We have nothing more than a communications problem," said Christal.

Hamilton retorted that "if you think this (report) is nonpolitical, you read it."

Seek Return Of Pinball Machines

Owners of eight pinball machines seized by Pacifica police and district attorney's agents August 26 have filed suit in Superior Court demanding that they be returned.

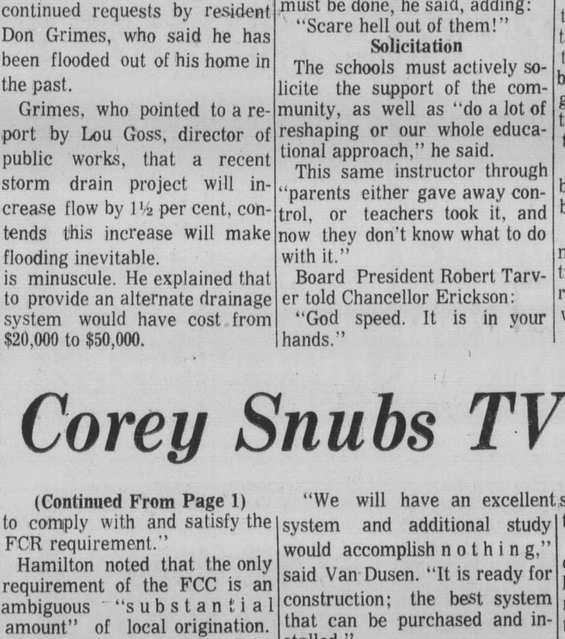
The suits deny that the machines are illegal gambling devices.

William and Louise Moore, owners of Moore's Truck Stop at 4430 Cabrillo Highway, ask for the return of two machines or the payment of their value, $1,400.

Leonard W. Girard and Fred C. Plate, operators of Winter's Tavern at 1522 Francisco Boulevard, demand the return of two machines or $1,700.

Dino F. Donati and George B. Johnson, owners of the D & J Music and Vending Company, ask for the recovery of four leased machines taken from Al's Cafe at 1604 Palmetto Avenue and the Linda Mar Lodge at 1249 Linda Mar Boulevard, or the payment of $3,500.

The suits state that the pinballs "are not such machines or devices the possession or control of which is penalized by the laws of this state."



BOWLING QUEEN — Alice Roberts, pretty 1970 Tournament Queen for the third annual Champion Auto Parts Handicap Tournament being held at the Serra Bowl, Colma, has an average score of 135 herself. The tournament will be on weekends of October 3 and 10. Total prizes of $1,620 will be given away and some 600 persons will participate.

Parents Protest Class Shifting, Trustees Listen

Juggling of Jefferson Elementary School District pupils to meet fluctuations in classroom loads has caused considerable parental emotion in Daly City.

After nearly two hours' discussion with the Board of Trustees last week, however, those parents whose youngsters attend Colma K-6 and Vista Grande elementary are resting with improved peace-of-mind.

The trustees—the three who remained past midnight—took action that favored the parents, who said they were concerned, rather than the administration.

Parents of both schools filled the 101 Lincoln Street board chambers to express their concern over actions the administration planned to take to equalize the classroom populations.

Each group had different reasons, because the problems were not identical, even though related in the over-all picture.

The concern of the administration at Vista Grande, according to Associate Supt. Dr. Vinton Stratton, was a 50-pupil load in a single kindergarten class, when state law prohibits, without financial penalty, a loading of over 33.

Of alternatives open, the administration chose to shift 12 or 13 students to the John F. Kennedy School at the foot of San Bruno Mountain, on Guadalupe Canyon Parkway. Three or four others would have walked to Colma K-6, which is closer to their homes.

That action would have reduced the overcrowded Vista Grande and bolstered the less-loaded JFK classes.

However, to make the transfers required busing of the five-year-olds from a Hillside Boulevard pickup.

The parents objected, and trustee Ed Tomasello, Bill Schumacher and Dorothy Adams were sympathetic and agreed to institute a parental suggestion that a second kindergarten be formed.

Supterintendent Frank Greenwood explained the cost would be in the area of $10,000, and his previous objection to addition of another kindergarten teacher was on that cost premise.

Colma K-6 parents "won" their point, as well. They had decried an administration attempt to shift one class of sixth graders from the adjoining Colma Intermediate School.

Two classes of sixth graders exist at the intermediate plant, Dr. Stratton pointed out.

The pupils, but not the teacher, would have been transfered. Administrators said the teacher would have been reassigned to another classroom situation.

Parents and a reading specialist cautioned the trustees that the shift would overload low-reading groups, in which students already are two years below their grade level.

They thought the proposed move was especially inappropriate inasmuch as Colma K-6 was mentioned specifically as an area of low reading achievement in he district's recent testing survey.

The board agreed to leave the two sixth grade classes at the intermediate school, then study at a later date the matter of special instruction for non-English speaking pupils. The district planned to use the excess Colma Intermediate teacher for this purpose, Superintendent Greenwood said.

Colma, Vista Grande and John F. Kennedy Schools were not the only facilities involved in shuffles, though there were no parents protesting the other actions to trustees.

A "handful" of Garden Village fifth and sixth graders were sent to M. Pauline Brown, Dr. Stratton explained, and "another handful" went to MPB from Vista Mar.

Kindergarten classes at Franklin D. Roosevelt School exceeded legal limits, and those at Abraham Lincoln were at 25 a session. So, the district ultimately consolidated the Lincoln classes into three and transferred the fourth teacher to FDR, where a fourth section was begun.

While the administration anticipated a classload average of 30 pupils a teacher at the K-6 level the status as of last Friday was at 28.6, Dr. Stratton pointed out.

Enrollment last week proved to be 264 less than calculated in projections.

Drives Own Car, Traced

San Franciscan Ross B. Holley was arrested on suspicion of driving a stolen car by Brisbane police early Friday.

But the car wasn't stolen and Holley was the legal owner.

On the other hand, officers Bob Davis and Dennis Sullivan were just doing their duty because the car was listed on the "hot sheet" and the stolen car list was current.

To get the full story one must go back to October 10, 1969 when Holley reported his car stolen.

Only it wasn't stolen, it was repossessed, police said.

Holley simply paid up what was owed on the car and drove off — fogretting to notify police the car had been recovered.

For a full year Holley drove his car around the Bay Area, never being stopped, until shortly after 4 a.m. this morning.

That's when he decided to drive through Brisbane. He hadn't gone a mile when the officer stopped him.

Press Releases Draw Criticism

San Bruno Councilman George Corey has struck back at fellow councilman Dick Griffith regarding numerous press releases sent out by Griffith.

"I am forming a truth - in - statement campaign," said Corey. "I hope it will be just as effective in combating Mr. Griffith's press releases as it has been in face to face confrontations with him."

Corey said Griffith "sits mute" at the council chambers during heated arguments and debates regarding important issues, and then issues press releases as though he had made smilar statements at the meeting.

"I believe Mr. Griffith is trying to fool the public into believing that he has made those statements in public at the time the issue arises, rather than writing press releases in the dark hours of the night," said Corey.

He took Griffith to task for recent praise by Griffith of City Manager Christopher (Kit) Menkin's report on the city's Crime Prevention Committee report.

"Griffith's statement," said Corey, "makes it appear that Mr. Menkin did substantial work in preparing the report (Griffith) requested.

"The fact is that Mr. Menkin never had any part in the crime committee report," said Corey. "His only exposure to it was that of making a request to Chief Cunningham for a status report. He then forwarded the chief's report with his own cover letter to Mr. Griffith and the rest of the council.

"The eight-page report Mr. Griffith praised is the work of the San Bruno Police Department and no one else," said Corey. "Mr. Griffith is seeking to praise Mr. Menkin to give the impression he is doing a good job as the city manager, and that has been the approach of Mr. Griffith and his majority councilmen since the night they appointed Mr. Menkin without due process."

S.S.F. Readies Disaster Plan

South San Francisco is preparing for a week-long simulated program for emergency response in time of disaster.

The program is known as Emergency Operations Simulation Training (EOST). It is administered by the University of Southern California School of Public Administration, Institute for Civil Defense and Disaster Administration.

Last week institute director Lawrence A. Snell and EOST coordinator Vincent P. Conners met with South San Francisco department heads to review the activities planned for November 2 through 6.

EOST is a training exercise designed to provide systemic operating experience to Emergency Operations Center (EOC) personnel (South San Francisco department heads or their appointees) under conditions which include simulation of a nuclear attack.

No outside communications or external operations units are exercised. A similar program was completed in San Bruno, San Carlos, and Palo Alto during the past year. A second exercise is planned for San Carlos.

Three assumptons are made regarding the EOST program; that in the event of major disaster, the responsibility for local action rests with local government officials; that preparation for emergency actions by local governments on a system basis will materially reduce the effects of a wide scale disaster; and that centralized command and control is the best method of dealing with large scale disasters.

The University of Southern California's role is that of consultant to the state and the local jurisdiction with emphasis on the conducting of the training and exercise portions of the EOST.

According to Snell, this is the sixth year for this particular project. He said 53 universities are involved, and there is a movement of university faculty members becoming more involved in communities in research and training programs.

"We are beginning to face up to the fact that our environment is changing drastically, and that includes the fact that we are in the nuclear age," said Snell.

He added that it wasnt until the Cuban crisis that the U.S. began taking salient steps to establish some sort of defense preparedness.

Snell referred to the civil defense philosophy as a "Doctrine of How to Exist," in that it is not possible to stop weapons once they are launched. "But even with the worst attack we have evidence that a major ratio of our population can survive if adequately protected," said Snell.

He said the best way to do this is to move toward a nationwide shelter program.

According to Snell, surveys have indicated that only about one in 40 or 50 persons have the feeling that a nuclear attack will occur in their lifetime.

Snell emphasized that even though this civil defense project concerns a nuclear attack, preparedness for it would be applicable and helpful under any disaster situation.

"The old approach (to nuclear warfare and necessity of preparaing for it) usually came in the form of scolding, warning and threatening tones," said Snell. "It turned people off."

He said the new approach (which was illustrated with a film) is low-key and designed to be instructive as to how to organize and respond to such a disaster situation.

San Mateo County's civil defense people now are in the process of working out a method of distributing to county residents a document on community shelters.

The document resulted from a four-county — San Mateo, San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa — study under the Association of Bay Area Governments.

One method mentioned, but not verified, for providing information to the public on shelter areas and other instructions in case of emergencies such as a tidal wave, earthquake, fire or flooding, was in the yellow pages of the telephone directory.

It was pointed out that an insert is being worked on, and will be presented to the proper teelphone company officials by the Office of Civil Defense, but no promises or guarantees could be made the proposal would succeed.

Incidentally, it also was pointed out that presently there are 8,000 shelter spaces in South San Francisco. The San Francisco International Airport was reported to have space for 37,000 and Skyline College for 3,000.

Don Alen, South San Francisco's Civil Defense Coordinator, said many would-be shelter areas have not been licensed for one reason or another as a shelter area. He said owners of buildings, for one thing, have to agree to certain stipulations. And as far as filling up of a shelter is concerned, it is on a first come, first served basis.

This fact prompted a question from South San Francisco Planning Director Dan Pass as to how the (city) administration thinks it could reserve 200 of some 300 spaces at the West Orange Avenue Library (site of the November operation) to government officials to the exclusion of residents, who may happen to get there first.

Paul Jones, regional field officer of the Region 7 Office of Civil Defense Office in Santa Rosa, explained that the purpose of the shelter program was not to save any certain number of persons. Rather it was an attempt to look at a long-range program to complete enough shelters for everyone. He also pointed up the necessity of having an operating seat of government.

Director of Public Works Lou Goss suggested something also should be worked out concerning families of city officials, and whether they should be allowed to accompany the official to the confines of the library. "I don't want to get in an argument at home," said Goss with a grin. "But to bring the family here (in time of disaster) would be getting into a bureaucracy of protecting yourself," which was Pass' point.

City Attorney John Noonan said also that something must be done to prevent "a lack of confidence" by the public. "Everyone in the city has a right to this building," said Noonan. "Maybe they can be relocated to another shelter."

General consensus was that families of officials would join the officials, "but they would have to work," and it would be highly probable that there would be a means of relocation for other residents.

Pass posed another question to the effect that in the past years as many as 50 new industrial (and other type) buildings have been constructed with no prior plan or preparation for shelters within them.

Jones answered this question by citing the fact the federal government now requires all new federal buildings to provide shelter space, including military installations.

However, according to Jones, there is no law which requires, for example San Mateo County, to provide shelter space. He said there is a need for local ordinances to make shelters available.

Jones said the state of Arizona has a law requiring shelters in certain newly constructed buildings, and that the state of Texas has built some schools underground.

The reference to the schools was part of Pass' question also, since schools are federally funded the director of planning wanted to know why shelters were not built into these buildings.

Jones explained that probably the main reason was that the necessity of obtaining bond issue approval from the public means the buildings are usually built at the lowest possible cost, using the cheapest possible material, just to get the bond issue approved.

"There has to be a change in the local building codes," reiteriated Jones.

A shelter space, as defined by the federal government, is an area with a protection factor of 40 — meaning that a persons is 40 times safer there than outside. The space must have a capacity for at least 50 persons.

Snell, in noting that the United States is one of the few countries that doesn't have a shelter requirement, said "Our capacity to survive is our greatest single defensive weapon."

Rob Sailor At Airport

David E. Ross Jr., 20-year-old U.S. Navy enlisted man from Stanton, Orange County, told sheriff's deputies he was beaten and robbed of $1,500 at International Airport here Thursday.

Ross said he was using a restroom in the south terminal when he was struck from behind. He whirled around, he related, and got a glimpse of two men. Then he was struck again and knocked out, he told deputies, and when he came to he found his empty wallet on the floor beside him.

Deputies said Ross did not appear to be injured.

Four Lanes Seen For Hillside Boulevard

Bumpy Hillside Boulevard may soon be a four lane scenic highway between South San Francisco and Daly City.

Sept. 22 a joing meeting of the San Mateo County Supervisors and Colma Town Council agreed to work together to push the road improvement project through their small community.

Previously the Colma Town fathers had refused to discuss the matter and vetoed a suggestion the roadway be improved, nothing it would benefit only South San Francisco and Daly City—not Colma.

A special committee made up of city and county officials had recommended a 60-foot right-of-way along the five-mile stretch of road, consisting of four moving lanes and five foot sidings for emergency parking.

Both the supervisors and town council accepted the recommendation.

Control of the road will be temporarily handed over to the county during the construction period but will revert back to Colma Town upon completion.

Plans are for the "scenic" highway to extend between the proposed East Market Street-Guadalupe Canyon Parkway in Daly City to the city limits of South San Francisco.

In other action, the supervisors vowed to crackdown on roadside flower peddlers who sell their products along highways primarily on holidays. These peddlers are cutting into the licensed dealers in the area and injuring sales, it was noted.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Board of Supervisors of the County of San Mateo, State of California, will receive sealed bids for the furnishing of all labor, materials, transportation and services required for Specifications for DREDGING AND DIKE CONSTRUCTION for SPOILS AREA DEVELOPMENT at COYOTE POINT MARINA for the County of San Mateo.

2. Instructions for bidders, bid forms, specifications and contract documents may be examined at the office of the County Purchasing Agent, Redwood City, California. All bids shall be submitted in accordance with the requirements and conditions of said documents, including such bid bonds as may be required.

3. Drawings, specifications and contract documents may be examined and copies obtained at the office of the Director of Building Construction and General Services, County Office Building, 590 Hamilton, Redwood City, California, upon deposit of $10.00 for said documents, which deposit will be forfeited if the contractor fails to return the specifications in good condition within ten (10) days of the bid opening date.

4. Bids shall be sealed and filed with the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of the County of San Mateo at the Hall of Justice and Records, Redwood City, California, on or before the 13th day of October, 1970 at 2:00 P.M., and will be opened in public in the Chambers of said Board of Supervisors at or about 2:00 P.M. of that day in said Hall of Justice and Records.

5. WAGE RATES The Board of Supervisors has determined and has had published the rates of prevailing wages in the County of San Mateo, in which the work is to be performed, for each craft or type of workman or mechanic needed to perform the contract. Said prevailing rates are set forth on listing, copies of which are set forth in the specifications for the work, in the offices of the County Clerk, Purchasing Agent and Director of Building Construction. Crafts and rates per hour for each craft or type of workman or mechanic needed to perform this contract are listed under Wage Rates, Instructions to Bidders.

6. The prevailing rates so determined are based on an 8-hour day, 40-hour week, except as otherwise noted. Existing agreements between the Building Trades and the Construction Industry groups relative to overtime, holidays and other special provisions shall be recognized.

7. It shall be mandatory upon the contractor, and upon any subcontractors under him, to pay not less than the said specific rates to all laborers, workmen or mechanics employed by them in the execution of this contract.

8. A bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in amount of not less than One Hundred Percent (100%) of the amount of the bid, and a bond will be required to guarantee the payment of wages for services engaged and all bids contracted for materials used in the performance of the contract in an amount of not less than One Hundred Percent (100%) of the bid.

Decision On Dump Is Called Unfair

County supervisors were criticized as being "grossly unfair" in rejecting Ox Mountain as a future county regional dump site without consulting individuals cities, by Theodore H. Long, vice mayor of San Burno, at Friday's meeting of the San Mateo County Council of Mayors in Burlingame.

Councilman Thomas M. Jenkins of San Bruno came to the defense of the county board, asserting that the cities had failed to let supervisors know what action they wanted.

Saying that the matter of solid waste disposal had been on the agenda of supervisors' meetings month after month, Jenkins declared, "After a year and a half they concluded we wanted to do nothing."

Long complained that twice in the last month supervisors have taken action on the grounds that cities have not responded — in transportation and in rejecting the Ox Mountain site.

"I resent their continuing attitude that we are not responding," Long asserted. "They have made unilaterial decisions when a number of alternative solutions are available."

Long complained that supervisors, in saying cities in three areas — the San Francisco International airport, on the Ox Mountain dump and on transportation — were doing nothing, were judging by "press releases." This, he said, is grossly unfair.

The complaint came up when Mayor Nick Gust of Pacifica, chairman of the mayor's council, said only seven cities had responded to an inquiry on solid waste disposal.

"We may not have a problem today, but we will be facing a problem tomorrow," Gust warned.
